Yanks Wage Seesaw Fight For Capture Of La Haye

Threaten Last Wooded Heights Above Town; Foe Battles Fiercely

Supreme Allied Headquarters, (Friday), July 7 (U.P.).—American troops twice have driven into La Haye du Puits and twice been driven out by German counter-attacks, it was announced today.

Fighting rages in the outskirts and the situation is confused, it was said.

Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Force, Friday, June 7 (AP).—U. S. troops closing a ring about the enemy anchor of La Haye du Puits have stormed to the edgeof the Foret de Monte Castre—where strong enemy forces lie in wait—and are threatening the last wooded heights dominating the town, supreme headquarters announced last night.

Front line dispatches said the only escape route from the town was under artillery fire, and reported savage fighting toward the heights of the forest, 3 miles east of La Haye, capture of which would unhinge enemy defenses resting on La Haye on the west and the bog, Marais de Gorges, on the east.

In the brightest, hottest day in Normandy since D-Day, another column coming around the great bog on the east fought down the road southwest from Carentan, widening this narrowest sector of the whole Normandy Front in an advance of more than a mile despite enemy counterattacks.

Armor Battles for Airfield

Both British and Germans poured armor and infantry into the battle raging for Carpiquet airfield, 3 miles east of Caen on the road to Paris, and the night communique said a number of enemy tanks were destroyed.

A dispatch from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's advanced command post declared more and more Allied troops and vehicles—"an astonishing total"—were piling up along the beachhead for the decisive battles ahead.

Germans, deployed in the rubble heaps of ruined La Haye, forced the Americnas to retire from the railway station.

This station fell yesterday, but front-line dispatches said the Americans retired to positions on the northern outskirts to await developments on the flanks, rather than butt their heads into strong enemy defenses in the heart of the city.

British and Canadians around Caen battled the greatest mass of German manpower ever concentrated on a narrow front in this or the last World War—one division to slightly less than 3 miles of front, Supreme Headquarters said.

Yanks Forced From Town

In the biggest advance of the day, the Americans fought forward more than a mile into the village of Culot, 4 miles southwest of Carentan. The enemy hit back in strength, forcing the Americans from the town, but the doughboys took up positions just outside.

In general, the Allies kept up the progress which had liberated 1313 square miles of French soil since D-Day, just one month ago today, an average of about 43 square miles a day. The Americans liberated three towns—Glatigny, 4 miles southwest of La Haye; Scorman, nearby, and La Butte, 6 miles east at the edge of the Marais de Gorges.

Advances were registered in yards. The Germans were striking back savagely from strong positions, trying to stem the Americans' southward drive through Normandy's most difficult terrain—the morasses that stretch from Carentan to the Atlantic and make the Normandy Peninsula a virtual island.

British and Canadian troops clung stubbornly to Carpiquet, only 3 miles west of Caen, and just to the south fought for the airfield,

Lawyer Convicted In Electrocution Of Imbecile Son

Pittsfield, Mass., July 6 (U.P.).—Socially-prominent John F. Noxon, Jr., wealthy 47-year-old corporation lawyer, was convicted of first degree murder late today in the electrocution of his imbecile infant son, Lawrence, last September 22. The mandatory penalty is death in the electric chair.

The jurors, ten of whom are fathers, deliberated four hours and 50 minutes.

Reds Take Kowel in New Thrust Toward Pinsk, Brest Litovsk

London, July 6 (AP).—Russia's First White Army, stretching its fighting front across the Pripyat Marshes, nearly 200 miles below the erupting battle zone in White Russia, has occupied Kowel in southern Poland, Premier Stalin announced tonight, and other Soviet forces drove steadily closer to the Baltic states on the north.

Kowel, German stronghold and communications center 75 miles southeast of Brest Litovsk, had been evacuated by the Germans 24 hours earlier.

From Moscow, Associated Press correspondent Eddy Gilmore called the capture of Kowel the commencement of "a great new Red army thrust in the direction of Pinsk and Brest Litovsk" and the German radio said the reason for the German withdrawal was to forestall a Russian pincers movement.

More than 550 other places were taken during the day as Soviet troops smashed westward all along the front and more than 5000 Germans were killed, as the Russians continued their methodical mopping up of the area east of Minsk. An entire regiment with its commander surrendered.

Gen. Ivan Bagramian's drive northwestward from Polotsk, already within a few miles of the borders of both Latvia and Lithuania, swept into more than 150 localities, including five railway stations. West and northwest of Minsk the Third White Russian Army captured more than 300 places.

Both drives directly threatened the city of Wilno (Vilna), disputed in battle for centuries. The communique disclosed fresh bombings there, and at Bialystok of huge fleets of bombers last night.

The First Army's front alone extended over a distance of more than 200 miles. Today it plunged within 11 miles of the vital railway junction of Baranowicze by capturing the town of Lyakhowicze. Baranowicze was said by Moscow to have been practically neutralized already by Soviet long-range guns aid air bombing.

This same army also took Zhitkowicze, 45 miles east of Luniniec and last big railway station before

2752 Killed By Robots, Churchill Says

8000 More Injured In 3-Week Period; London Chief Target

London, July 6 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill in a "brutally frank" statement told the world today that German flying bombs in three weeks have killed 2752 persons, seriously injured about 8000, and have done extensive damage, primarily in London, which he disclosed as the previously censored but obvious target of the enemy weapon.

This was the toll from 2754 of the winged missiles—an average of one death per bomb—but it would be a mistake to underrate the serious character of this particular form of attack," Churchill told Commons.

He raised the possibility that London might be attacked in the future by giant rocket bombs of a different type, on which the Germans have been working.

Yanks Bomb Ramps Again

Even as he spoke, a thousand American bombers smashed at the launching ramps of the "doodle bugs" across the Channel with 3000 tons of bombs in the day's most savage aerial assault against the enemy. They bombed 18 of the sinister nests, and photographs showed the targets well hit.

Not a bomber was lost, but the Germans retaliated in propaganda, declaring the Americans were using winged bombs, too—small gliders dropped from regular bombing craft.

But, after a lull, the bombs came over again tonight. There were casualties but the defenders had one of their best days, downing "a large proportion" of the robots.

Churchill did not try to sugar-coat the facts, did not claim to have

Don't Evacuate D. C. Yet, Patterson Advises

By the United Press

To reporters who asked about rumors that Germany had a robot bomb capable of reaching the United States, Acting Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson yesterday had this to say:

"I advise you not to evacuate Washington for the time being. I am going to hang around a while."

Von Rundstedt Is Replaced By Von Kluge

Rommel's Hand Seen In Hitler's Shift of Western Command

London, July 6 (AP).—The Berlin radio announced tonight that Field Marshall Gen. Karl Rudolf Gerd von Rundstedt had been removed as commander of German forces in the west and had been replaced by Field Marshal Gen. Guenther von Kluge, who led the German armies in the sweep through Russia in the first autumn of that war, only to be stopped at the gates of Moscow.

DNB said Hitler, in a cordial letter, "thanked Rundstedt for his services and indicated he will have a new command for him in the near future," but it was likely that replacement of the stern, tight-lipped officer who often has disagreed with his Fuehrer marked a victory for Field Marshal Erwin Rommel.

Reportedly Rommel and Rundstedt quarreled. Rommel, immediate commander of the defending forces along the Atlantic Wall, is supposed to have insisted his superior, Von Rundstedt, throw in strategic reserves to break the Allied beachhead.

Rundstedt was reported to have sought a more orthodox strategy in holding his forces for a single decisive counterattack when the direction of the Allied assault had been developed.

Rommel, always eager to commit himself early in battle, was said to have been relieved of his command, but this was doubted. Rundstedt was said to have ordered Rommel to get along with what he had, and the quarrel over the use of strategic reserves was said to have reached Hitler himself.

Tonight's report made no mention of Rommel, who has been said by Allied supreme headquarters to be in direct command under Von Rundstedt. But Rommel long has been a Hitler favorite and one of his closest Nazi henchmen.

The DNB dispatch said the Prussian Rundstedt gave up his command because of ill health, but despite the friendly tone of Hitler's letter there have been reports that friction existed between the Fuehrer and his top general in France.

Frosty, 69-year-old Rundstedt was looked upon as the best of German military chieftains and probably the high priest of German

36 Jap Ships July 4 Toll In Pacific

9 Vessels Sunk, 6 Probably and 21 Damaged in Island Battle

U. S. Pacific Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, July 6 (AP).—United States carirer planes sank 9 Japanese ships, probably sank 6 and damaged at least 21 vessels in their July 4 strike on the Volcano and Bonin Islands.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz raised the totals today in a communique giving additional information on results of the fast carrier task forces' bombing and bombardment of Chichi Jima and Haha Jima in the Bonins and Iwo Jima in the Kazan (Volcano) Islands.

He added 9 planes to the number previously reported destroyed in the enemy's weak defense. Total of 34 plus an undetermined number damaged on the ground.

Nimitz said the pilots sank two destroyer escorts and damaged one medium cargo ship from a convoy of "several enemy ships" discovered 80 miles northwest of Chichi Jima.

Many Other Vessels Hit

In addition, these other vessels were sunk or damaged in Chichi Harbor:

Sunk—One small oiler, one medium ammunition ship and one medium cargo ship.

Probably sunk—One minelayer, one trawler and four luggers.

Damaged—One large cargo ship, three medium cargo ships, one small cargo ship, two small oilers, one minelayer and one destroyer. Several of these were beached.

Two small cargo ships and nine luggers were damaged at Haha Jima.

Jap Ship Score 41 Sunk

This raises the U. S. carrier pilots' score of Japanese shipping from June 10, start of the western Pacific operation, through July 4, to 41 sunk, 4 probably sunk and 62 damaged. Seventeen more craft also probably have been sunk and 28 sunk or damaged.

American losses remain four ships superficially damaged.

The Japanese have lost 835 planes since June 10, plus 35 probably destroyed.

Nimitz said "we lost five pilots and four air crewmen from seven of our aircraft which failed to return" from the Bonin-Kazan raid.

This increased American plane losses for the June 10-July 4 period to 168, with 107 personnel lost.

Senator Overton Again Candidate

Alexandria, La., July 6 (AP).—United States Senator John H. Overton has announced as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for reelection to the Senate seat he has occupied for 12 years.

A statement issued by him here last night ended political speculation as to his future plans, begun when he stated recently that he would not seek reelection. He said his decision to run resulted from a "State-wide demand from all factions" that he make the race.

Hope Revived For 64 Held In Fiery Mine

9-Inch Shaft To Be Drilled To Drop Food To Trapped Men

Bellaire, Ohio, July 6 (AP).—A faint hope for 64 men sealed by a fiery inferno deep in Powhatan mine was raised tonight with plans to sink a shaft, 9 inches in diameter, through 350 feet of earth.

High speed drills were rushed here to bore directly down to the men after officials gave up hope of reaching them through the regular mine shaft and the pit was sealed to subdue a fire that broke out yesterday.

Rescue workers felt there was a bare chance they would find life when the bit breaks into a tunnel containing the men. Some officials feared all were dead; but the narrow shaft was the only way to know for sure.

Mine Is Sealed

A fall of rock broke a trolley line in the big mine yesterday, the wire short-circuited and flames raced through the main shaft. The 64 men, working in a dead-end tunnel off the shaft, were trapped.

At dawn today State inspectors abandoned hope and sealed the mine—largest in Ohio. The air system was shut off and every entrance was closed with mortar.

The Bureau of Mines in Washington said there was hope the men might be alive. Some of them, said Daniel Harrington, chief of the Health and Safety Service, were entombed in a similar fire two years ago and survived, and they would know how to protect themselves and their companions. If in good physical condition, the miners could survive 10 days without food or water in the event they built a barricade to turn back smoke or fire, he added.

George Mitchell, chief engineer for the Powhatan Mining Co., also said he still had hope.

Once the eight-inch shaft is drilled, food and water can be lowered. Later the hole might be expanded to permit lifting the men

Harrington estimated it might require two days to drill through. Two high-speed drills were rushed here at noon.

Sun Bakes City; Mercury to Stay In Middle 90s

Decreasing humidity during the day yesterday gave returning vacationists small relief from a brilliant sun that sent the mercury at 4 p. m. to 94 degrees where it hovered during the late afternoon. Prospect for today, according to the forecaster is for continued sunny weather which is expected to hold the temperture in the middle nineties with slowly increasing humidity. Lowest temperature for the city will probably be above 70 degrees.

Yesterday's low temperature was recorded at 8:30 a. m., when the thermometer sagged to 67. Humidity yesterday fell from a high of 63 per cent at 2:30 a. m. to a low of 29 per cent at 2:30 p. m.

A gentle, 10 mile-an-hour south wind was the best that blew yesterday. The Weather Bureau could not locate any signs of thundershowers.

Padilla Here, Begins Talks With Hull

Statesmen to Confer On All Questions Involving U. S., Mexico

By the Associated Press

Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Mexican Foreign Minister Ezequiel Padilla conferred at the State Department yesterday for more than an hour in the first of a series of official talks planned by the two statesmen.

Dr. Padilla arrived here yesterday morning for a week's visit to the United States as a guest of the American Government.

Hull told newspapermen that he would confer with Padilla from time to time on all questions in which the United States and Mexico have common interests.

At Blair-Lee House

Hull indicated, however, the conversations might take up matters relating to international situations but that there is no definite program and nothing particular in mind.

Padilla, meanwhile, told correspondents after his talk with Hull that there had been so many conversations between Mexico and the United States that he considered it useful for him to come to Washington at this time.

Secretary Hull, asked further at his press conference, if the subject of Argentina had come up during his discussion with Padilla, said he would rather wait until his meetings with the Mexican Foreign Minister had progressed further so he could give a final answer. Otherwise, he added, he had nothing now on the Argentine situation today.

Padilla is staying at the Blair-Lee House, the official Government guest house, while he is in Washington. Following his conference with Hull yesterday Padilla at-

Marshall, Arnold, King, Vandegrift Meet French Leader

By Robert C. Albright

Tall, rosy-cheeked Gen. Charles de Gaulle arrived here yesterday amid the booming of a 17-gun salute and full military honors to begin immediately candid talks with the President on United States relations with his French Committee of National Liberation.

The Nation's high command turned out at the National Airport to greet him cordially and 28 minutes later he was in the presence of the President and his Cabinet in the diplomatic reception room at the White House.

"My, I'm glad to see you," said Mr. Roosevelt, warmly clasping his hand. A few moments later they were happily chattering away in French. In the next two days they would get down to the more serious business that brought De Gaulle in an ocean hop from Algiers: Improvement in recently ruffled Franco-American relations.

Apparently, by common consent, recognition of the French committee was not one of the questions to be broached, but the auguries appeared excellent for an agreement on working relations in French territory similar to that reached last week with the British."

From the time De Gaulle stepped out of a four-motored Army transport at the airport at 4 p. m. through his later welcome by the President and a formal State Department reception last night the motif was strong mutual respect and friendship.

This was reflected in one of De Gaulle's rare speeches in English, before an OWI microphone at the airport, after the Army Air Forces band had blared out The Marseillaise and the Star-Spangled Banner.

"I am happy to be on American soil to meet President Roosevelt and to meet those who are relentlessly fighting with us, as American boys—soldiers, sailors and airmen—are fighting abroad against the common enemy," he said.

"The whole French people are

80 Children Reported Among 120 In Morgues

Ringling 'Big Top' Collapses in Flames On Crowd of 6000 In Hartford, Conn.

Hartford, Conn., July 6 (AP).—A burst of flames in the main tent of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey circus today brought death to at least 120 persons, at least 80 of them children, and horrible injury to many others in a disaster which officials said might ultimately result in a death toll of 200.

State Police Commissioner Edward J. Hickey, one of the 6000 spectators in the gay audience when the first tiny flame was discovered minutes after the opening animal act, placed the number of deaths at between 175 to 200, while Clifford Fowler of the American Red Cross said in New York City he had been advised that more than 200 had perished.

By 5:15 p. m. the huge drill shed of the State Armory, quickly converted into a morgue, contained the bodies of 120 men, women and children, many of whom were trapped under the fiery canvas as it collapsed at 2:45 p. m.

Identification Difficult

The problem of identifying the dead was great. Many, if not most of the bodies were charred beyond recognition and the flimsy garments worn by women and children offered little immediate hope of establishing identity except through a long and tr... of elimination.

One hospital repo... an incomplete count showed ...injured, and another said at least 30 children had been admitted.

In the midst of the disaster, Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin made a radio appeal for calmness as he directed mobilization of all the State's emergency facilities.

Neighborhood drugstores were converted into temporary first-aid stations, the State Guard was mobilized to restore order and aid in the rescue work, blood plasma was flown here from Boston, and soldiers were detailed to the scene from the Army's Bradley Air Field in nearby Windsor Locks.

Hal Over, press representative for the circus, termed the fire the "first great fire in the whole history of Ringling Brothers Circus," and estimated the damage at $300,000.

Horror Scene Described

Over said the cause of the fire was undetermined, but expressed the belief "it started most likely from a cigarette dropped by someone sitting in the upper rows of seats."

Eye witnesses groped for words to describe the scene of horror which quickly unfolded before them as the first flame, described by one as so small that it "could have been put out with a pail of water," quickly became a lethal, fiery weapon.

Above the roar of frightened animals could be heard the frantic call of mothers seeking their children and the furious crackling of flames as they first quickly enveloped the big tent and then sent the canvas floating to the ground in a fiery covering for the milling throng.

The animals were saved because the circus arrived late in Hartford. They were housed in a big nearby tent, but circus roustabouts had

Yanks Occupy Manim Island Flanking Noemfoor

Advanced Allied Headquarters, New Guinea (Friday), July 7 (AP).—United States troops have occupied Manim Island off American-invaded Noemfoor Island, headquarters announced today.

Manim was seized July 5 without opposition. Its occupation provides a flank position for the one remaining Japanese-held airdrome on Noemfoor. That airdrome, Namber, is the present objective of U. S. forces driving across Noemfoor, off north Dutch New Guinea.

The two other Noemfoor airdromes—Kamiri and Kornasoran—already are in American hands.

District Area Drought Almost Equals Deficiency Last Year

The Washington metropolitan area is in the grip of a drought almost equal to that of last year when 11 million dollars worth of farm produce and hay was lost, the National Capital Parks and the Weather Bureau said last night.

The parks department said the "cumulative effect of the drought of the past two summers is taking a heavy toll of trees and shrubs in the park system." Irving C. Root, superintendent of parks, said it has been "necessary to remove 132 trees, hundreds of shrubs and 30 large American elms which have succumbed to attacks by the European elm bark beetle which have taken advantage of the drought-weakened condition of the trees."

The Weather Bureau said the drought now is but 35 hundredths of one inch less than it was last year for May and June. The bureau said 2.78 inches of rain fell in June this year, and that the normal is 4.13 inches which leaves a deficiency of 1.35 inches for the month. In May, the bureau said, there fell 1.2 inches which left a deficiency of 2.68 inches or a total deficit of 4.03 inches for the two-month period. The total last year was 4.28 inches.

As was the case last year, the Weather Bureau last night said it could not promise rains in sufficient amounts to counteract the drought.

Root stated that every effort is being made to water trees whose natural surroundings have been disturbed by construction work, grading operations, overly intensi-

Woman Is Chosen Cochairman Of Democrats' Platform Body

By Mary Spargo

Making a strong bid for the women's vote, the Democratic National Committee yesterday announced the appointment of a subcommittee on resolutions and platform, with Representative John W. McCormack, Massachusetts, as chairman and Representative Mary T. Norton, New Jersey, as cochairman, the first woman ever to be so named.

Meanwhile, it was disclosed yesterday by Senator Tom Connally, Texas, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, that the party is apt to take the text of the Senate-adopted postwar resolution as its foreign affairs plank.

Hearings on the platform are expected to start July 17 in Chicago. The subcommittee announced last night by Robert E. Hannegan, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, is composed of 12 men and 11 women.

Beside McCormack and Mrs. Norton, members are: Senators Robert F. Wagner (N. Y.), resolutions chairman in 1936 and 1940; Carl A. Hatch (N. M.), Joseph C. O'Mahoney (Wyo.), Harry S. Truman (Mo.), Claude Pepper (Fla.), Theodore F. Green (R. I.), and James M. Tunnell (Del.); Representative Thomas D'Alesandro, Jr. (Md.), Josephus Daniels, former Navy Secretary and Ambassador to Mexico; George J. Burke, Michigan lawyer and former general counsel of OPA, and Representative Ed V. Izac of California.

The women members are Mrs. Fred Vinson of Kentucky, wife of the Economic Stabilization director; Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, Wyoming, director of the Mint; Mrs. Julia Porter, California; Miss Doris I. Byrne, New York; Mrs. W. T. Bost, North Carolina; Mrs. Albert E. Hill, Tennessee; Mrs. Scott Stewart, Utah; Mrs. Lucille Stewart, Kansas; Mrs. Charles G. Ryan, Nebraska, and Mrs. Sue Rubel, Oklahoma.

Significant in view of the dissension in the Democratic Party over the Negro issue is the comparatively limited Southern representation on the important platform committee.

There has been much agitation for a short platform so that a stand on the racial question can be avoided. While many Southern delegates want to put a "white supremacy" plank in the platform, the New Dealers would like to be able to match the strong planks in

Bund Hall Was Rendezvous For Servicemen, Jury Told

By James E. Chinn

Deutsches Haus, headquarters of the Los Angeles unit of the German-American Bund, was pictured at the mass sedition trial yesterday as a rendezvous for soldiers and sailors, one of whom—an Army top sergeant "in full uniform"—participated in a celebration of Hitler's birthday anniversary.

The scenes were described by Charles Joseph Young of Los Angeles, the Government's latest witness, who revealed he joined the bund in 1939 to act as an undercover agent for both the FBI and the United States Naval Intelligence.

For background purposes, Young explained he was born in Germany, came to this country in 1906 and 14 years later was naturalized an American citizen. Back in Germany, he said, his name was Jung. He testified he joined the bund at the request of the naval intelligence because it was his "hobby" to "protect my country." From time to time, he declared, he furnished the intelligence officers with any information relating to the organization's affairs which he thought might be of interest.

The witness, in the course of his direct examination by Chief Federal Prosecutor O. John Rogge, directly and indirectly linked 5 of the 29 defendants with the bund. One of them—Hermann ...ax Schwinn, former West Coast leader of the bund—he quoted repeatedly.

During one of the bund's meet-

Allied Raiders Down 29 German Planes

War Sidelights

Reich People Blamed in Mass Deaths

London, July 6 (U.P.).—Brendan Bracken, Minister of Information, said today the Germans are herding thousands of Jews to their deaths in public slaughter houses in Europe and the German people as well as the military general staff must be held accountable.

"What the Germans are doing is nothing less than the setting up of abbatoirs in Europe into which are herded thousands of Jews," he said.

"We cannot blame the general staff entirely. The people of Germany have tolerated these abbatoirs, and the responsibility must be shared by them when the time comes for exemplary punishment."

The brutal efficiency, in which the Prussian delights, has distorted the soul of Europe, he said.

"This is the biggest scandal in the history of human crime."

Gen. Ryder's Escape

Rome, July 6 (U.P.).—Front dispatches revealed today that Maj. Gen. Charles W. Ryder, commander of the United States Thirty-fourth Division, narrowly escaped death in a German trap behind the Allied lines near Sassetta Monday. His armored car turned a curve and ran into a burst of fire from German machine guns, machine pistols and mortars hidden along the road.

The general and his party hit the dirt and hiked back cross-country. Their driver rejoined Ryder in a nearby village, 30 bullet and shell holes in the car.

2000 Heavies Hit Targets in Reich, France and Italy

London, July 6 (AP).—The Allied aerial command threw more than 2000 heavy bombers against Europe from two directions today, striking enemy installations in Germany, France and Italy, while thousands of tactical warplanes punished German transport and supplies in the Normandy battle zone.

Allied losses were four heavy bombers and five fighters. Twenty-nine enemy planes were shot down.

Americansi n 250 bombers crossed the North Sea and hammered Germany's big Baltic naval base at Kiel, while another similar formation pounded air fields in France, 70 of which have been hit since D-Day along with 17 in other enemy territory.

Noe nemy fighters rose over Kiel. The Germans either were caught napping or no longer are strong enough to defend even some of the vital home sectors. Flak downed three Liberators.

From Italian bases, 500 U. S. heavies smashed at German rail, oil and other industrial objectives in northern Italy, including a viaduct in the Brenner Pass.

Bombers and fighters swept across the Channel throughout the day, shuttling to and from the continent in waves.

On their outbound flight some of the bombers passed over low-flying Nazi robot bombs streaking into London.

American medium and light bombers concentrated on supply routes behind the battlefront. Similar British units ripped into German fuel stores.

More than 300 U. S. Marauders and Havocs made 30 attacks on five main rail lines leading to the battle area from the south and on important bridges—two of them inside embattled Caen.

Leg Shot Off, Captain Saves Landing Films

The stories behind the great photographs which Americans saw in newspapers a few hours after the first Allied landings in France contain as much drama as the historic scenes they revealed—so says an American captain in England who aided in expediting Signal Corps pictures to this country on June 6.

He is Capt. Henry W. McAllister of New York, who spent several years in Washington before going overseas. In a letter to a Post reporter, he said:

"The first pictures to be transmitted to the States were made by a Signal Corps captain who had his leg shot off shortly after he landed. He held on to his camera, begged and yelled at the medics (medical corpsmen) until he made them understand the importance of the pictures he had in his camera.

"He dictated his captions to a medical officer just before his leg was amputated aboard a hospital ship and, upon reaching the near shore, arranged to get a phone message through to headquarters. He ended his captions with: 'Lose leg, recommend that Lieutenant Blank be made commanding officer.'

"You probably will be reading stories about this chap when his next of kin has been notified. Anything they write cannot be half enough because here was a guy who had everything and gave it to do his job. He's doing fairly well in a hospital here now after a second amputation and several operations on his chest and arm.

"Te best movie staff of the actual landing was made by a sergeant in the same outfit who was hit 7 minutes after he landed. He also held onto his camera and got his stuff through in much the same manner as his commanding officer. His injuries, thank God, were not very serious."

strategy.

His reported successor in France, 61-year-old Kluge, has the reputation of being a defensive general. After failure to reach Moscow he was berated by Hitler, but, despite this falling out, he was said to be a Nazi-type commander, one who would be more to the liking of Rommel than Von Rundstedt. This lends credence to the idea that Rommel finally got to Hitler and had Rundstedt removed.

This sweep, all the way from the middle Pripyat northward to the Minsk area, enveloped numerous other places of varying importance on the line from Minsk to Baranowicse.

The capture of Kowel tore a new gap through which Soviet forces could strike toward Warsaw and the heart of Poland.

Berlin commentators predicted a ne woffensive by the First Ukrainian Army south of Kowel, and said other Russian drives were forming in southern Poland.

A Moscow correspondent said "officers told me that lately the Germans have had no solid front whatsoever. Instead the command has sought to concentrate several striking forces and shift them up and down the front in an effort to block the advance." He said the Soviet air force had largely frustrated this maneuver.

530 Children Now Listed at Bethesda Recreation Center

A total of 530 children and high-school students have enrolled at the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Recreation Center to participate in the daily summer program, Park Commissioner E. Brooke Lee announced last night.

Offered free, the program is conducted from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m. Tribute was paid by Colonel Lee to high school and college instructors who are cooperating "so efficiently" with the experienced directors and county teachers in making the program attractive to all age levels.

Competitive teams are being organized within the center for county-wide competition. There will be play-offs between the teams or players of each suburban district. Later they will compete for the county playground championship.

Chaneys' 40th Milestone Marked by 40 Guests the "answer," and promised only that "everything humanly possible" was being done to combat the bombs.

A vast secret battle against the bombs had been in progress for more than a year before the first of the missiles hit England, he said, and now, out in the open, "this battle may be a somewhat lengthy affair . . . It is yet to be tested who has suffered and will suffer the most in that process."

Deaths Average One Per Bomb

Already, he disclosed, the Allied Air Forces have expended 50,000 tons of bombs on the launching sites and experimental headquarters in France and Germany, and "a considerable portion of our flying power has been diverted for months from other forms of offensive activity."

When he pointed out that from day to day the fatalities caused by the bombs had averaged one for each bomb launched, members of the house exclaimed, "Very satisfactory!"

The Prime Minister, however, went on to disclose that removal of non-essential persons from London was not being discouraged and that children already were being sent from the danger area.

But he raised and demolised a hypothetical suggestions that Parliament should move from London, exclaiming, "here we began the war, and here we will see it ended," and made it clear that the bulk of Londoners would simply have to "take" the flying-bomb assaults as they did the earlier "blitz."

One point he stressed vehemently:

"I do not want there to be any misunderstanding on the point, that we shall not allow the battle operations in Normandy nor the attacs we are making against special targets in Germany to suffer. They come first.

Evokes Cheers in House

"We must fit our own domestic arrangements into the general scheme of war operations. There can be no question of allowing the slightest weakening of the battle in order to diminish in scale the injuries which, though they may inflict grievous suffering on many people and change to some extent the normal and regular life and industry of London, will never stand between the British nation and their duty in the van of victorious and avenging world."

Listeners broke in with restrained shouts of "Hear! Hear!" which in Commons are called cheers, and cheered again in louder fashion as Churchill concluded:

"I am sure of one thing: That London will never be conquered, will never fail, and that her reknown, triumphing over every ordeal, will long shine among men."

He fended off subsequent questions and declined suggestions for a secret sesison on the ground that people might not think he had been frank in public, booming: "I have been brutally frank."

All over London tonight there was a reaction somewhat like relief—relief that the rest of the world now knew that London was the target of the enemy's tricky weapon, and that the town that endured the blitz was still able to take it.

Got Wind of It Early in 1943

Churchill discussed at length the long unpublicized warfare that had preceded the unveiling of the Nazi weapon.

Early in 1943 the British first got wind of it. he said, and at first thought it was a rocket weapon.

By last July, despite all efforts at concealment, intelligence agents and air reconnaissance discovered the main experimental station at Penemund, on the Baltic, and the RAF promptly and heavily bombed it.

Then, at Watton, in the Pas-de-Calais area of France, nearest to England, what appeared to be a long range rocket-firing site was discovered. It was attacked as long ago as September, "and has been under continuous treatment since by the heaviest weapons carried by the British and American air forces."

Extensive reconnaissance disclose dother structures of the Watton type and, some in greater numbers, of another sort between Calais and Le Havre.

One hundred of these smaller devices were bombed and destroyed last December, Churchill said.

Special Committee at Work

"If it had not been for our gombing operations in France and Germany, and the counter-preparations in which we indulged," he said, 'the bombardment of London would no doubt have started perhaps six months earlier and on a very much heavier scale."

Churchill declared, however, that while the German bomb had done etxensive damage by blast effect, "it cannot, of course, be at all compared to the terrific destruction by fire and high explosives with which we have been assaulting Berlin, Hamburg, Cologne and scores of other German cities, the war-manufacturing points of Germany."

He said a high proportion of the enemy bombs had been shot down or destroyed by various methods.

Churchill said a special committee of high officers and scientists was at work on defense measures, but said he could give no guarantee against the flying bombs or rocket bombs until the "soil from which these attacks are launched has been finally liberated from the enemy's grip."

De GAULLE

thinking of you and salute you, Americans, our friends."

A Frenchwoman in the throng shouted "Vive de Gaulle!" The general concluded:

"The war is going well. When the Germans and Japanese are gone the world will have to be organized for freedom and peace. Our ardent desire is that the United States and France shall work together in every way as they are now fighting together, for victory."

His 17-gun salute was four short of the 21-gun military greeting for a chief of state, but the official turn-out for de Gaulle was second to none.

With Henri Hoppenot, head of the French delegation, and officials of the many French missions, at the airport to meet him were Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff; Admiral J. King, chief of Naval Operations and Commander of the Fleet; Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the Air Forces, and Lieut. Gen. Alexander A. Vandegrift, Marine Corps commandant.

Three squadrons, with colors, from Bolling field made up the guard of honor, with a saluting battery from the military district of Washington.

Whisked to White House

The sandy-moustasched de Gaulle, towering above some of our own military and looking fresh and vigorous despite the long trip from Algiers, was escorted to a waiting limousine by Maj. Gen. Edwin M (Pa) Watson and Rear Admiral Wilson Brown, the President's military and naval aides.

Together with Col. Eugene Dillarat, American aide to De Gaulle, and Captain Tayssot, his aide de camp, they whisked the general directly to the White House. He tarried outside the south portico only a moment for pictures, then was led to the President's party, waiting for him inside.

He wore a light khaki uniform, with only one decoration, the Cross of Lorraine, symbol of the French who kept on fighting, pinned over his left breast. His plain, round cap showed two stars.

The President was seated with his daughter, Mrs. John Boettiger, standing behind him, and members of his Cabinet grouped around the room.

After his first hearty greeting, Mr. Roosevelt first presented his daughter; and then Secretary of State Cordell Hull. Hull gripped the Gaulle's hand and said: "Welcome, glad to have you with us."

Presented to Cabinet

In turn, de Gaulle was presented to Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Secretary of the Navy James V. Forrestal, Secretary of Interior Harold Ickes, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson, Acting Secretary of Agriculture Grover Hill and Admiral William D. Leahy, last Ambassador to France and the President's personal chief of staff.

Starlight Series To Offer Weird Temple Dances

If your tooth has just been filled you probably would feel more like moaning than dancing. Not so the natives of Bali and Java. They regard a good toothache as an excuse to dance. Likewise they look upon a wedding or a birthday or a temple rite in the same way.

Tomorrow and Sunday nights when the Bali-Java dancers led by Devi Dja perform in Meridian Hill Park for the Post's Starlight Concert series, they will demonstrate some of the works which have made their people famous as possessors of a "dance for every occasion."

Temple Culture Reflected

Most of their repertoire is an authentic part of Javanese and Balinese temple culture. Many of the dance dramas are based on epics of Hindu Sanskrit mythology, the Ramayana and Mahabarata.

Among the dances to be given tomorrow night are Legong, a temple dance showing the King of Lasem bidding farewell to his two wives; Dayak, a primitive tribal dance of Borneo and temptation of Buddha, in which Buddha sits in meditation as the royal courtesans beseech him to return to his previous life, as prince, but Buddha spurns the earthly temptation.

Others scheduled tomorrow night are Mainang, a Javehese folk dance about a wedding, Kris dance, in which the mad king of Madjahapait imagines himself surrounded by his enemies, starts to attack them and falls dead.

Beauty Is Striking

Still others are Arjuna, which shows Arjuna, hero of Javanese legends coming upon a fair maiden in a garden who at first spurns his attentions but later acquiesces; Kepang, a comic pantomine of a young lover and two flirtatious women and Kochak, a dance of exorcism, characterizing a snake, elephant, deer, tiger, bird and monkey.

Of the dancers themselves one critics wrote "They are of a beauty so striking that one wonders whether they really exist outside of their dances."

time only to erect a canvas corral and did not put the canvas roof over it. Pyrotechnic sparks from the blazing "big top"—bigger than Madison Square Garden's arena—fell into the corral, and probably would have ignited the top if it had been in place.

Narrow Escape Here

Washington residents will recall that the circus narrowly missed disaster on its last visit to the District in June, 1943, when it was drowned out by a sudden shower and windstorm and the "big top" and several other tents being erected were flattened.

The storm occurred on the evening of the circus' arrival in town, June 13. The lot at Bennings rd. and Oklahoma ave. ne., was deluged with floods of water, which filled the trench that had been dug for the pore plant cable.

Troble struck again, several days later, however, when more than 150 performers and employes of the circus were stricken with food poisoning.

Inquests Today In Two Fatalities On Car Tracks

Inquests will be held today in the deaths of Wave Alice Brenbarger, 25, of Wave Quarters F, Delaware Hall, Arlington, and Israel Brannock, 54, Negro of 360 I st. nw., both of whom were struck by streetcars.

Operator of the streetcar which struck Miss Brenbarger, June 26, was Arthur L. Mankin, 53, of 3816 7th st. nw., according to police. She died at the Bethesda Naval Hospital, July 1.

Brannock was pronounced dead on arrival at Casualty Hospital, July 3. Driver of the trolley was Roland F. Jewell, 45, of 1267 Penn st. ne., police said.

Rep. Vincent Quits Field in Kentucky

Bowling Green, Ky., July 6 (AP).—Representative Beverly M. Vincent, Democrat, of the Second Kentucky Congressional District announced here today he would withdraw as a candidate for renomination and reelection. He said he would issue an explanatory statement Monday.

State Senator Earle C. Clements of Morganfield and Munnell Wilson of White Plains also seek the Democratic nomination. Three Republicans have qualified as candidate for the nomination August 5—William W. Fraim, Scottville; W. H. Hunt, Central City; Otis White, Morgantown.

the Republican platform dealing with Negroes.

Connally yesterday said tha talthough there may be no racial plank in the party platform, the issue would be there at the convention. He declared that whether the convention seated the regularly elected Texas delegates or the rump group which has pledged support to President Roosevelt, there would be a Texas scrap at the convention.

There was no representation on the committee from any of the three states which have been raising the greatest trouble over the Negro issue—Texas, Mississippi and South Carolina.

Vice Presidential Timber

While the National committee announced its plank writing group in Washington, Hannegan, at a news conference in Columbus, Ohio, predicted President Roosevelt would run for a fourth term and listed eight prospects for the vice-presidency.

Vice-president Henry A. Wallace, Speaker Sam Rayburn, Senators Alben W. Barkley (Ky.) and Harry S. Truman (Mo.); War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes, Governors J. Melville Broughton, North Carolina and Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma, and Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt.

Should the Democratic Party adopt the Connally resolution as its foreign policy declaration it would come close to the Republican foreign policy plank and the Mackinac declaration.

ings, Young said Schwinn "likened Adolf Hitler to Jesus Christ" and declared "the time will come" when the German Fuehrer's birthday anniversary "would be celebrated more so, or equal to the birthday of Christ" and that Hitler would be the "savior of mankind and the Ayran race."

The witness quoted Gerhard Wilhelm Kunze, the former national leader of the bund, as having said at another meeting that the American Selective Service law was unconstitutional and that he "expected" bund members to refuse to serve in the American armed forces "to fight England's battles and shoot our own blood brothers in Germany."

Another defendant, Hans Diebel, proprietor of the bund's Aryan Bookstore in Los Angeles, was quoted by Young as having exhorted Los Angeles unit members to "make the best of it and go along" with the onetime alliance between Russia and Germany. He declared Diebel said he "didn't know what to make of the alliance" but if Hitler agreed to it "he must know best."

Young also identified a copy of a reprint of a bulletin entitled "Roosevelt's Jewish Ancestry" which he said had been sold at the Los Angeles bund headquarters. The bulletin, Prosecutor Rogge pointed out when it was admitted in evidence and submitted to the jury for examination, was origi). nally published by Gerald B. Winrod, a defendant, and reprinted by another defendant, Robert E. Edmondston of the Edmondston Economic Service.

After a week's standstill the trial resumed when Chief Justice Edward C. Eicher appointed two attorneys to replace James J. Laughlin who was ousted Wednesday as counsel for Edward James Smythe and Robert Noble. Noble refused to consent to the change of attorneys but the court overruled him.

M. Edward Buckley was designated as attorney for Smythe, and J. Austin Latimer was assigned to represent Noble temporarily. Both attorneys have other clients in the case.

When the trial resumed Laughlin took his old place at the counsel table and attempted to address the court, but Justice Eicher refused to hear him and ordered him to leave the trial table. He left the courtroom protesting.

Laughlin's latest move was to file in the United States Court of Appeals a petition for a writ of mandamus, designed to rescind Justice Eicher's order. The petition also calls fo ra halt in the trial until the appelate court announces its ruling.

Henry K. Klein of New York, attorney for Eugene N. Sanctuary, whom the court ordered Wednesday to return to the trial, was still absent as the trial progressed. Questioned by Justice Eicher, Sanctuary said he did not know when Klein would return.

The court designated Ethelbert G. Frey, attorney for Defendant Edmonston, to represent Sanctuary temporarily, and at the same time served notice it would not permit "any interference with the trial on account of insubordination of attorneys or officers of the court."

There, citing solidarity of the Western hemisphere as a realization of the cooperation of all the American nations, he praised the leadership of President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull.

For a nation imbued with peaceful ways, the United States has displayed remarkable ability in becoming a foremost military power within a short time, building up vast forces both on land and sea, Dr. Padilla declared. This same ability, he added, can and will be shown in peace.

Secretary Hull paid tribute to the dsitinguished Mexican visitor problems confronting the nations for his "forthright facing of the of the western hemisphere."

Hull, chairman of the Pan American Union's governing board, said Padilla was one of the first to see clearly the Axis threat to hemispheric solidarity.

Nazi Defense Tactics 'Wait Coop Them Up,' Patterson Says

By George Connery

Allied forces in France are building up a four-to-one advantage in firepower and they "will not be cooped up by German defensive tactics," Acting Secretary of War Robert Patterson declared at a news conference yesterday.

"For every bomb, shell or bullet thrown at us by the Germans, we will give them four," he said, pointing out that the American and British preponderance will extend to all weapons—small arms, grenades, mortars, artillery, airplane bombs and rockets.

He stressed what it means to our soldiers to be backed up by superior artillery fire and air cover, and said "nothing will be as disheartening to the Germans as to see themselves so heavily overmatched on the field of battle."

German communications are so crippled by our aerial bombings, the Acting Secretary revealed, that some infantry units have had to march on foot from the Paris area to the Normandy front, and one German armored outfit took 14 days to come from eastern France.

Army and Navy casualties in all theaters were given as 261,661 killed, wounded, missing and prisoners of war. Patterson listed known Japanese dead as 21,850 in the southwest Pacific, 7300 on Saipan and in the central Pacific, 18,000 in northern Burma and 13,000 along the Indian border.

Japs 'Foolish,' Says Man Who Fought Them

"Foolish"—that's the thumbnail description applied to Japanese soldiers by Corpl. George Snyder, 223 Douglas st. ne., who has returned home on furlough wearing two battle stars for the New Georgia and Bougainville campaigns.

Snyder, a native Washingtonian, went to the Pacific in 1942. The toughest fighting he recalls was three months ago on Bougainville, when the Japs launched a teffific offensive against our forces—and found they were "beating their heads against a stone wall."

As a member of an Engineer Corps combat battalion, Snyder's own worst moment came when the Nips began throwing mortars into an ammunition-loaded half-track he was driving up a steep hill. He wasn't hit; just stopped and waited until the mortars stopped flying.

Now 26, Corporal Snyder is a graduate of McKinley High School and was employed by the Executive Novelty Co. before entering the Army. He also served with a National Guard outfit before the war. His wife, Mrs. Shirley Snyder, lives at the Douglas st. address.

fied use or transplanting. Transplanted trees and shrub are most susceptible to drought damage, he explained. The park superintendent also said that the lack of ground moisture in the Washington area was greater now than at any time since the disastrous drought of 1930 and expressed the belief that three or four days of steady rain would be necessary to restore a normal condition.

Virginia Drought Worst in 14 Years

Richmond, Va., July 6 (AP).—The present drought in the State is as bad as the record dry season in 1930, L. M. Walker, jr., commissioner of agriculture, said today.

Rain would help many crops, but some are beyond redemption, he added.

Rain especially would relieve the choked livestock markets, Walker declared, where farmers are offering their stock because they have no means of feeding it. Pastures, late corn and hay, tobacco and all vegetable crops would still benefit and could be saved at this date, he said, if substantial rain fell now.

which became a part of no-man's-land.

An observer said the battlefield was strewn with the corpses of the enemy and dead cattle, that "German tanks can be seen moving among the remains of the hangars 800 yards away and shells whistle from both sides of the airdrome." The airdrome is one of the best in Normandy and was much used by the Germans.

The British also had great troop concentrations in this area for what may be the showdown battle for Caen, 125 miles west of Paris. The close packing of troops on both sides left little room for maneuvering.

Job Offers Lag As Applicants Flock to USES

Washington employers were urged yesterday to take a greater advantage of the War Manpower Commission's new referral program and place their orders with the U. S. Employment Service.

According to Ernest V. Connolly, area WMC director, job applicants have increased up to 100 per cent above the average daily quota, but calls from business and service establishments have not kept pace, despite the oft-voiced need for qualified workers.

With the estimated shortage of 40,000 workers in this area, job orders should be filed more promptly, thus enabling the USES to make immediate referrals to the large number of work seekers who have indicated their availability since the WMC program went into effect last Saturday.

The heavy influx continued yesterday, with men in the majority of the 150 Opersons reportedly applying at USES K st. office.

The comparatively low rate of referral to job openings—well under 50 per cent of the applicants—was attributed also to the fact that many persons lacked statements of availability, or found no jobs to their liking.

Today the WMC Priority Committee is exepected to begin its first study of the 50-odd applications (Form 63) received by the area WMC requesting manpower ratings.

Eisenhower Tells Yank Confidence In Other Allies

Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Force, July 6 (AP).—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower said today American forces in the European theater had supreme confidence in the courage and skill of other fighting units of the United Nations.

"Within the area of the Second British Army there is constantly evidenced an admiration for the work of the United States forces, while throughout the American flank there is universal and grateful appreciation of the vital and important tasks the British troops have been so brilliantly performing," he said.

"By sea, air and land we are waging this campaign as a single combat team. Credit for every foot of ground we gain and every advantage we obton over the enemy is justly shared by all."

Yank Advance In Italy Halted Temporarily

Rome, July 6 (AP).—Counterattacking Germans backed by heavy artillery concentrations, have temporarily halted American forces on the Italian west coast, 10 miles from Livorno (Leghorn), but the British Eighth Army continued today to hammer out gains near the center of the line on the approaches to Florence.

Doughboys, clinging to approximately half the smoking town of Rosignano, a few miles inland from the coast below Livorno, were reported to have thrown back four furious assaults within 24 hours, inflicting heavy casualties.

Five miles to the east there was bitter fighting in the outskirts of Castellina. Casole d'Elsa was firmly in Allied hands, with Allied tanks probing a mile beyond the town.

Eighth Army forces lunging northward from Lake Trasimeno won positions within 3 miles of the important road center of Arezzo, 36 miles southeast of Florence. French Colonials on the Fifth Army's inland wing thrust out some 8 miles north and west of captured Siena and were engaged in stiff fighting at Abbadia and on Monte Riggioni, to the northwest.

Indian units reached the outskirts of Umbertide, highway junction on the Tiber Valley 18 miles north of Perugia. Polish troops were reported engaged in bitter fighting 8 miles south of Ancona on the Adriatic coast after capturing the towns of Badia, San Sabino and Castelfidardo.

Prisoners taken since the start of the offensive were placed at 35,000.

Medical Board To Pass on Extra Rations for Illness

Appointment of a medical advisory committee to pass on all applications for extra food rations because of illness was announced yesterday by District OPA Director Robert K. Thompuson.

The committee, headed by Dr. Hugh H. Hussey of the Farragut Medical Building as chairman, includes Dr. James M. Moser, Dr. Roy L. Sexton, Dr. Roger O'Donnell and Dr. Thomas F. Collins, all District physicians.

Letters from physicians must accompany applications for extra rations explaining the need for the food, the type and amount required. The board will consider the application and its recommendation will be accepted by the District OPA.

Eight officers of the Army Nurse Corps have been awarded the Purple Heart for wounds received as a result of enemy action in Italy, the War Department said.

U. S. Army Report

Poison-Gas Use by Japs Confirmed

Fourteenth U. S. Air Force Base, China, June 29 (U.P.).—Capt. Ralph F. Thompson, U. S. Army Chemical Warfare Intelligence officer, confirmed today Japanese use of poison gas against the Chinese defenders of Hengyang.

Thompson found evidence of both mustard and Lewisite gas, he reported on his return from investigating Chinese charges that gas was employed.

Thompson said he found gas victims with burns and blisters on their legs, left exposed by short summer uniforms.

Thompson said he believed shells containing a mixture of mustard and Lewisite were fired by the Japanese from 75-millimeter guns.

The officer narrowly escaped when his car was dive-bombed and strafed by Japanese planes as he was leaving Hengyang.

War Department Silent

The War Department withheld comment yesterday on a report that the Japanese had used mustard and Lewisite gas in China.

Washington newsmen recalled President Roosevelt's promise last year that the United States would give "swift retaliation in kind" to any Axis nation employing gas against any of the United Nations.

Chinese Mark 7th Year of War Tonight

Heroes of bitter fighting in China and high ranking Chinese diplamatic representatives will speak at 8 p. m. tonight at the Sylvan Theater in a ceremony in honor of the seventh anniversary of Chinese resistance against Japanese aggression.

The mass meeting, sponsored by the Chinese National Salvation Association and the Washington Committee for United China Relief, will have as its featured speaker Dr. James L. McConaughy, president of United China Rrelief.

Other speakers are the Right Rev. Y. Y. Tsu, Bishop of Kumming and Assistant Bishop of Hongkong; Liu Chieh, Minister of China, who will bring a message from Ambassador Wei; Maj. Gen. P. T. Mow, deputy director of the Chinese Commission of Aeronautic Affairs; Col. Richard Fell of the Air Transport Command, recipient of the presidential citation for flying unarmed transports in the China-Burma-India theater, and Maj. T. H. Wang, Chinese officer wounded in action.

In case of rain, the meeting will be transferred to the Department of the Interior Auditorium.

French Stall Nazi Traffic In Many Areas

Allied Supreme Headquarters, London, July 6 (U.P.).—Lieut. Gen. Joseph-Pierre Koenig's French Forces of the Interior, estimated at 500,000 armed men, have sabotaged German communications in France so completely that the Allied air force now is concentrating on fewer targets, and the Nazis are forced to channelize their movement into the battle zone, spokesmen disclosed tonight.

A special communique said of five French departments—Vercors, Gers, Doubs, Ain and Ardeche—had been liberated.

A spokesman interpreted this to mean that the sectors were under Maquis control, and that no enemy movements through these areas were possible unles heavily escorted.

A French spokesman said traffic was entirely stalled in Brittany in northern France, in the Pyrenees-Lyon area, and on nine main routes, including the Calais-Reich and Paris-Belfort lines, which are being cut an average of two to five times daily.

A spokesman said it now takes a German division moving from Russia to Normandy three times longer to travel the 300 miles from the Franco-German frontier to the battle zone than it does for it to come the 1000 miles from Russia to the border.

D. C. Private Killed in Italy; Flier Missing

A District private has been killed in action in Italy and a flier, who holds a presidential citation for his attacks on the Ploesti oil fields, has been reported missing over Romania, it was learned yesterday.

Killed was:

Pfc. Alfred Eugene Mancini, infantryman, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert P. Mancini, live at 5015 Belt rd. nw.

Missing is:

Staff Sergt. Kermit R. Judd, jr., aerial gunner and engineer whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kermit R. Judd, live at 1307 12th st. nw.

Pvt. Mancini, 20, was killed somewhere in Italy on June 1, according to word received by his parents from the War Department. He entered the Army shortly after his graduation from Woodrow Wilson High School in 1942 and served for two months in North Africa before being sent to Italy.

Besides his parents, he leaves a brother, Robert J. Mancini, and two sisters, Helen F. and Mary L. Mancini, all of the Belt rd. address.

Sergeant Judd held the Air Medal and a Presidential citation for his participation in Liberator bomber missions over France, Austria and the Balkans.

A native of Alexandria, the flier was a student of Central High School when he joined the Army on his eighteenth birthday. He was sent to the Italian theater last October.

Newlyweds Get Break Under Tax Simplification Law

By the Associated Press

Congressional tax experts had a word of cheer yesterday for fall newlyweds and for households anticipating a blessed event in the latter part of the year.

Digging through the technical language of the income tax simplification bill, which became law May 29, they found:

1. A man can take unto himself a wife at any time during a year, even on December 31, and take a full $500 exemption for her in his tax computation.

2. Likewise, a baby born at any time during the taxable year gives its parents a full year's exemption of $500.

Previously the exemptions for brides and babies were apportioned, the taxpayer getting a fraction of the exemption based on how many months of the year his bride or his new baby depended on him for their living.

Reappointment Of Olds to FPC Is Assailed

By the Associated Press

One opponent of Chairman Leland Olds' reappointment to the Federal Power Commission described him before a congressional committee yesterday as "an outspoken advocate of collectivism," while another said his philosophy was "harmful to our national well-being."

They voiced their protests against Senate confirmation before the Senate Interstate Commerce Subcommittee considering President Roosevelt's recent nomination of Olds for another term.

A. B. Hill, a commissioner of the Arkansas Department of Public Utilities, said views expressed by Olds to the National Association of Rural Electric Cooperatives at St. Louis in January, 1943, "indelibly brand" him as "a crusader and reformer" and indicate he "advises the launching of an economic revolution."

Assails Olds

Earlier, Reuben W. Peterson, chairman of the Wisconsin Public Service Commission, asserted belief Olds' "philosophy of weakening and bypassing the State authorities is harmful to our national well-being."

Hill told the committee he appeared as an individual and not as representative of his department.

He said Olds, at the St. Louis meeting, suggested in a speech that cooperative union labor should take over control of industry and manufacturing; that consumer cooperatives should take over trade outlets and that rural cooperatives should control all production.

"His views and ideologies of today are still out of harmony with our American way of life and with our syste mof individual enterprise," Hill added.

Testifying earlier, Peterson said: "I think it would be a contribution to amicable relations between the State and Federal regulations if Mr. Olds were no longer a member of the Federal Power Commission."

Dall Asked to Testify

Peterson, whose appearance was arranged by Senator Moore (R., Okla.), a member of the subcommittee, said Gov. Walter S. Goodland of Wisconsin "wished me godspeed in this mission."

Subcommittee Chairman Tunnell (D., Del.) recessed the hearing until tomorrow, when he said Lieut. Col. Curtis B. Dall, former son-in-law of President Roosevelt, would be asked to testify respecting the granting of an FPC licenses to the Tennessee Gas & Transmission Co., of which he once was president.

Senator Moore said he was told this company was organized and then sold to the Chicago corporation before final authority to build a 1200-mile gas pipeline from south Texas into West Virginia was

Crude Oil Price Raise Approved Under Subsidy

Fred M. Vinson, director of economic stabilization, yesterday approved a premium price plan permitting increases ranging generally from 20 to 35 cents per barrel in maximum prices of crude oil produced from fields averaging less than 9 barrels per well daily.

The plan involves a Government subsidy. The Defense Supplies Corporation will defray its costs, estimated by Vinson at 50 million dollars annually. Vinson said the plan will not involve increases in prices of products to the public.

The program is "terribly impractical," Senator Moore (R., Okla.) said today. He declared that "this is merely a gesture by the Administration in acknowledging the need of an increase in the price of crude oil while refusing to grant an equitable general increase," Moore said.

Membership in the International Assn. of Machinists (AFL) has passed the 700,000 mark, or triple the strength at the start of the defense program.

Stumbling Block

Interpreter Lack Snags Money Talks

Bretton Woods, N. H., July 5 (AP). Language and communication difficulties, involving chiefly the Russian delegation, emerged today as one of the major potential stumbling blocks at the United Nations Monetary Conference.

Although the conversations have not yet reached the stage for decisive action, a source close to the conference said the Soviet group was experiencing difficulty not only in communicating its views to other delegations through interpreters but because of the necessity for keeping in close contact with the Kremlin.

Conference Spokesman Harry D. White, reporting an absence of major developments at press conference, mentioned the language barrier as a contributing factor without naming any specific country. He said subcommittees had been appointed in some instances to deal with the problem.

From other delegates it was learned that the Russians have shown no tendency toward being adamant on any point, but that all issues involving concessions or modifications ahve required contact with Moscow by means of slowly moving coded cables.

In general, the Soviet attitude was desscribed as an eagerness to cooperate in a field brand new to the Red government.

Tentative formulas thus far advanced generally have revolved around such considerations as national income, foreign trade volume and gold holdings and production. The Russians, however, are understood to be considering a suggestion that another factors be weighed—the proportion of actual military aid to the Allied cause.

This might have the effect of realigning to some extent the participating authority in the fund as it has been projected in preliminary discussions.

Some delegates expressed the view it also would open the conference to diplomatically difficult debate over such small countries as Yugoslavia, Greece and Denmark where the degree of resistane to Nazi occupation has varied because of geographical and other factors.

New District Grand Jury Is Sworn In

A new District grand jury was sworn in yesterday for the next three months. The jurors took the oath before Chief Justice Edward C. Eicher of District Court.

Louis C. Brubaker, 45, 231 Channing st. ne., a storekeeper of the Washington Navy Yard inventory division, was named foreman. The other grand jurors are:

Arlington Federation Plans To Establish YMCA Branch

Establishment of a YMCA in Arlington County to provide additional facilities for health, recreation and education is being sponsored by the Arlington Civic Federation, through its Welfare Committee.

Mrs. Florence Arnheim, chairman of the committee, has invited organizations and civic leaders to send representatives to a meeting in the Colonial Village Ballroom, Wilson blvd., and North Troy st., on July 24, at 8 p. m.

Mrs. Arnheim said Leonard DeGast, general secretary and R. H. Gaber, boys work secretary of the Washington YMCA, will be guest speakers. Interested individuals are urged to attend.

Present plans of this committee of the Civic Federation call for the building of a YMCA in Arlington on a decentralized basis and will include activities for both boys and girls, and men and women.

Truckers' Wage Fight Put Up To White House

The War Labor Board yesterday voted unanimously to direct WLB Chairman William H. Davis to take steps to send a Midwest truckers dispute to the White House.

The action followed refusal by the Midwest Operators Association to comply with a WLB order for a wage increase to employes. The operators appeared at a WLB hearing yesterday to explain why they did not comply.

Davis said the President may have no other recourse than to seize the properties of the noncomplying members of the association and provide for Government handling to insure continued operations.

Record Crop Of Wheat Is In Prospect

The largest wheat crop in history is in prospect for this year, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported yesterday, but cautionad "weather and other factors" could still materially change the outlok.

If 1,035,000,000 bushels are harvested—as indicated now—the carry-over of old wheat will bring the domestic wheat supply for the year to 1,385,000,000 bushels.

The average supply from 1932-41 was 973,000,000 bushels.

The use of wheat for feed is expected to be reduced this year, because of a bountiful corn crop.

In view of the tremendous crop, the Government was reported to be ready to use Commodity Credit Corporation funds to steady "the uneasy wheat market."

Wheat prices were on the rise until a few weeks ago, in the face of shortage fears and talk that flour and bread might have to be rationed should this year's crop fail. Spring rains, good corn prospects, and other factors started th eprices downward.

Under the new OPA act, the Government is charged with taking "all lawful action" to assure farmers at least parity on major products.

Approximately 67 million acres were planted to wheat this year, in comparison to 55 million acres last year. The 1945 goal is 70 million acres.

PUC Orders New Trolley Platform

As a result of recent requests of several Government agencies for more convenient streetcar stops, the Public Utilities Commission yesterday ordered the experimental use of a streetcar loading platform at 3d st. and Independence ave. sw.

Officials of the War Manpower Commission, the Office of War Information and the War Production Board had asked for the change at a recent PUC hearing. The test will determine whether the new stop interferes with traffic or endangers pedestrians, the commission said.

Coconut production in Puerto Rico is approximately 24,000,000 coconuts per year.

BOMBS FOR RAIDS ON JAPAN — At a U. S. Army 20th bomber command base in India, bombs for the B-29 superfortress raids on Japan are stacked in neat piles.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

IT IS NO LONGER a secret that the United States now has two bases in Russia for shuttle-bombing. One base is located in northern Russia for the use of U. S. planes attacking Germany from England. The other base is in southern Russia for use of U. S. planes coming from Italy.

Not known, however, is the fact that the northern base recently suffered a serious Nazi bombing raid which knocked out a considerable number of Flying Fortresses.

What happened was that the U. S. bombers had completed a successful raid over Germany, during which they encountered little fighter opposition, and had arrived safely at the Russian shuttle-bombing base. Tired, the crews lined up their planes for the night and went to sleep in adjacent barracks.

But because the base is somewhat cramped, the planes were lined up closer to each other than they should have been.

At 2 a. m., the Nazis, who apparently had trailed the U. S. planes but had not attacked, suddenly staged a night raid. Catching the base relatively unguarded, they made mince-meat of the neatly lined-up Flying Fortresses.

Few of the bomber crews were killed, due to the fact that they were asleep in their barracks.

NOTE—Senator Langer of North Dakota has inquired of Secretary Stimson as to what radar and fighter plane protection we have worked out with the Russians for the safety of these new shuttle-bombing bases. He wants to know whether this disaster was the fault of U. S. officers or due to poor cooperation.

THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION recently licensed a new radio station in Houston, Tex., to Judge Roy Hofheinz, after he had shown that Jesse Jones dominated all the radio stations in Houston and that they carried an amazing minimum of patriotic war appeals. But now Judge Hofheinz is encountering obstacles all along the line . . . Latest is a demand for the Greater Houston Broadcasting Corporation for a rehearing of his license. Interesting fact is that the secretary and treasurer of this firm are Forrest L. Andrews and Thomas D. Anderson, the lawyers who handle most of the Texas business for Jesse Jones' RFC . . . The weather has a lot to do with elections. Record-breaking rains, wiping out culverts and bridges in North Dakota, blocked many farmers from voting in the recent Nye primary. Most of them would have opposed Senator Nye . . . When some people expected D-Day to be in May, an Army crony of Gen. "Wild Bill" Donovan remarked that this was impossible. "Donovan, though supposed to hold down a desk job," he said, "always goes ashore with every invasion." In May, Donovan was in the Pacific.

Flashes From Chicago

THE CONVENTION'S forgotten man: ex-Vice President Charles G. Dawes. Once the hero of the Dawes plan for reparations settlement, famous for his upside-down pipe and his "Hell-'n-Maria" language, he stood back of the speakers' platform, unsmiling, unapplauding, unintroduced, while the crowd welcomed Herbert Hoover, the man who sent him to London as Ambassador. . . The convention's most nervous man: Publisher Roy Howard, attired in star-spangled shirt, nearly having heart failure when his hero, Herbert Hoover, couldn't get the microphones to work. Rushing one of his writers, Henry J. Taylor, to the stage, Roy had him straighten out the microphones while Hoover was in the middle of his speech, pantomimed back and forth regarding the sound effects. Spectators almost thought that Roy himself was making the speech.

New York, July 6.—On the eve of the invasion of Sicily, John Gunther was with the commanding officers in their temporary quarters deep inside an ancient tunnel in Malta. Lord Louis Mountbatten arrived there and said to the author of "Inside Europe," "Inside Asia," etc., "Now, sir, you're really inside Malta." . . . In an Egyptian cafe, one night, Gunther interviewed King Farouk. At the end of their talk, the King of Egypt asked: "Tell me, Mr. Gunther, how do you think I would do in Hollywood?" . . . "I didn't know of your interest in Hollywood," said Gunther. . . . "Interest?" said King Farouk. "My Dream Girl, in the whole wide world, is Ginger Rogers."

TALLULAH BANKHEAD

Tallulah Bankhead told some college girls who were visiting her that she herself had had no schooling since she was 14. "And how were your school-marks until then?" one of them asked. "For instance, what was your mark in history?" . . . "I never had to take any history exams," Tallulah confessed, "because I'd always complain to the teacher that, on the night before the exams, I had nightmares—I dreamed that Louis XIV was beheading ME."

The powerful Democratic mayor of a Western city has been guilty of a number of objectionable, dictatorial acts. One of the leading citizens in the community approached the President and suggested that he issue a statement denouncing the mayor . . . "If he were to run again, tomorrow," asked Roosevelt, "what do you think the people would do?" . . . "They'd reelect him," was the frank answer . . . "In that case," said the President, "the proper thing to do is to start educating the people of your city."

Sam Goldwyn's representative phoned Ben Hecht to discuss a deal for Hecht's services on a picture which needed polishing. "No, by all means No," Hecht answered. "I've told you before—I'm finishing a book, I've got six magazine stories to write, and I'm through with Hollywood for the duration—for years" . . . The representative reported this to Goldwyn, who raged: "You ought to know better than to do that. Hecht doesn't want to be disturbed? So don't disturb him. He wants to be left alone? Leave him alone—until next week."

Only one writer ever tried to learn, from former King Victor Emmanuel, just what he thought of Mussolini's position as Il Duce. That writer was Emil Ludwig who, while writing a biography of Mussolini, was introduced to the King. Ludwig began by mentioning Bismarck. The King praised Bismarck and said that the credit for unifying Germany was his and not Kaiser Wilhelm's. "But after all," Ludwig suggested, "Wilhelm was the man who chose Bismarck as his Chancellor" . . . Victor Emmanuel paused, then sighed: "Did he really choose him?

One of the unpublicized figures in our town is Harrison Williams, who, despite market losses, taxation and lavish entertainment by his wife, still possesses one of the largest fortunes in America. His wealth has been estimated at over 500 million dollars . . . During the stock market crash of 1929 there was a rumor in Wall Street that Harrison Williams had lost 100 million dollars. A friend saw him that week, and Williams showed no anxiety about the crash. "But what about this report that you lost 100 million dollars?" Williams was asked . . . "My dear fellow," he shrugged, "it's the last 100 million that counts."

HEDDA HOPPER
France Vs. Norway!

Hollywood, Calif., July 6.—If it's true that Greta Garbo is lending an interested ear to David Selznick's blandishments to do the Sarah Bernhardt role for him, what will happen to the story of the Norwegian merchant marine which he agreed to do at the request of the Norwegian Ambassador?

GRETA GARBO

With Garbo's notable lack of personal contribution to the war to date, it would seem to be the smart thing not only so far as public reaction here in her adopted homeland is concerned but for morale value to her countrymen who are taking the brunt of the Nazi buffeting, that she let nothing interfere with making the Norwegian picture. Wouldn't it be something if Garbo provided a "situation" in United States-Norwegian diplomatic relations, merely by giving the nod to a French film? Nations have glared at each other for less.

Local Boy Makes Good

George Sidney, who's practically a Metro product, having begun there as prop boy when he was 16, has been handed "Cabbages and Kings" for his next directing assignment. It's a fantasy, with an "Alice in Wonderland" flavor, written by Gladys Unger. The music is by Alec Templeton, Joe Pasternak produces and Jimmy Durante has the top comic role. George, who's now directing "Anchors Aweigh," also did "Bathing Beauty," which made a star of Esther Williams and is getting raves on its New York opening. It looks as though he's on his way now, and I don't know of anybody who deserves his success more. . . . Helen Hayes starts her coast-to-coast tour in the Florence Ryerson - Colin Clements play, "Harriet," in September. Speaking of the bookings, Alfred Lunt said, "Why, there's been nothing like 'Harriet' since 'Ben Hur.'"

Saying It With Music

Andre Kastelanetz and Lily Pons write from "somewhere in Iran": "We have organized a 50-man G. I. orchestra, including 16 violins. The players came from all distances by plane, truck, and train. We are starting on our tour, after rehearsing five full days and evenings. Everyone loved it. There were a few professionals, but most of the players were amateurs. Among the 'finds' was a splendid double-bass who played under me in the Cleveland Symphony. . . . What we lack in physical comforts is amply recompensed by the hospitality of every one. . . . Yesterday was our first formal concert. It was a great success, and attended by a gala audience of ranking officers of the United States and Russia. We missed the rich obligato of our only viola at this concert. He broke two strings and I doubt if in all Persia he can find another set."

Call of Grease Paint

Laird Cregar is off for New York to do "The Man Who Came to Dinner" in summer stock for his friend Gus Schirmer, jr. (they met at the Pasadena Playhouse) and has persuaded Tallulah Bankhead to do "Private Lives" for the same company. They'll finish their jobs there at about the same time and then return to Hollywood, Laird to do "Hangover Square" and Tallulah "The Czarina." . . . Monty Woolley has signed a new contract with Twentieth, and will be teamed with Gracie Fields again in "Sally and the Senator"—about a music hall queen whose daughter marries into New York society. The story is an original by Monty Banks (Gracie's husband) and Lazio Vadnay, and will be directed by Bill Lebaron.

South of the Border

Manuel Reachi, who produced the Mexican-made film "Yolanda," starring ballerina Irina Baronova, is trying to get her to forego her current "Follow the Girls" stint and sign for more pictures with him . . . Baronova amazed previewers with her acting ability and has the visiting Hollywood executives hot on the trail. She is reported interested in the current talk about an English version of "Ballerina," the French film that received such raves several seasons ago . . . If Columbia gets the picture rights to "Lady Precious Stream," the Chinese fantasy which was such a hit on Broadway a few seasons ago, Natalie Schafer will re-create the leading role which she did on the stage. She is the only Occidental character in the cast. The play was produced in New York by Morris Gest.

Around the Town

Brenda Marshall, Les Tremayne, Martha Scott and her husband, Carlton Alsop, are among our less hotcha citizens. They are seldom seen at the glamour spots. It might surprise you to know that their favorite entertainment is a weekly get-together in their respective homes for the purpose of reading and discussing the 100 best books . . . The first thing Leo Gorcey asked when he regained consciousness after looping the loop with his motorcycle was "How's my motorcycle?" Leo, who's still in Wilshire Hospital, would like it known that aside from two broken wrists and a few scratches, he's fit as a fiddle . . . There were lots of droppers-inners on the "Brazil" set last week to watch Veloz and Yolanda do their Samba number . . . Larry Adler, the harmonica expert, is back from Chicago and goes to work in "Music for Millions," the Koster-Pasternak picture . . . Not only is Lois Collier a dead ringer for Lois Andrews but to make things more confusing they're both dating Al Bloomingdale, the New York millionaire . . . Louis Armstrong returns to Hollywood the last of July after a Nation-wide tour.

Anderson Play Intact On Screen at Capitol; Lively Stage Show

IT IS AN UNUSUALLY FAITHFUL TRANSCRIPTION of the original stage play to the screen that George Seaton has achieved in his film adaptation of Maxwell Anderson's "The Eve of St. Mark," which yesterday opened its first Washington engagement at Loew's Capitol Theater.

ANNE BAXTER

Produced by Twentieth Century-Fox, under the direction of John M. Stahl, the picture retains all of the vital accents of the play and has been accelerated in movement without any sacrifice of the boisterous barracksroom humor or the respectful salute to the courage and soundness of character of American youth.

Mr. Seaton has worked with such fidelity to the concept and intent of the Anderson drama—written primarily for college and semiprofessional performance rather than for the Broadway stage—that it is difficult even for one who has seen "The Eve of St. Mark" enacted on the boards three times by the Broadway and touring casts to detect in precisely what manner he has tightened the play's structure and quickened its pace.

Whatever deletions and modifications have been made were effected with extraordinary acumen. Nothing essential to the inspiring demonstration of what it is that constitutes "Americanism" is missing from the screen.

All Accounted For

The scene sequences, to all intents and purposes, are identical with those of the footlight version. Both the martial and romantic aspects of the story are initiated on the farm of the Wests; the Army camp and "juke joint" episodes are adequately accounted for, if not wholly intact; the embarkation scene, with Sergeant Ruby's apostrophe to the world's greatest craps game on an earlier military adventure, is still a comic gem with overtones of an ominous future, and the Philippine siege continues as moving a tribute to the fine fiber and fortitude of GI Joe as has come out of this war.

Even the cinematically hazardous device of the dream intervals, in which Pvt. Quiz West is counseled by his mother and sweetheart and counsels them, is successfully brought off, with an intensification, rather than impairment, of interest, forcefulness and suspense.

The principal roles have been cast with fine discretion. William Eythe and Anne Baxter, as Quiz West and Janet, the girl from the neighboring hill, bring youthfulness, believability and deep emotional appeal to the roles on which the whole strength of the play pivots. The elder Wests are adequately portrayed by Ray Collins and Ruth Nelson, and their younger sons by Dickie Moore and Jimmy Clark.

Solid Soldiery

Among Quiz's associates in the armed forces, Vincent Price, as the poetically philosophical Pvt. Francis Marion; Michael O'Shea, the robustious Mulveroy; George Mathews, the case-hardened but gentle Sergeant Ruby, Stanley Prager, Henry Morgan, Robert Bailey and Murray Alper render valiant service.

As the two susceptible sirens of the side street cafe, Joann Dolan and Toni Favor draw the sharp contrasts essential to the play's romantic integrity. The supporting cast is numerous and of uniform balance.

In profusion and expansiveness of scene, the picture of course, represents a vast elaboration of the skeletonized, "impressionistic" settings against which the piece was played in the parent theater—a distinct asset.

Double-Barreled Revue

The Capitol's new stage bill divides itself equally between athleticism and music. The Three Edwards Brothers open it with a better-than-usual display of hand-balancing and tumbling and Ken Davidson, champion, John Scott, challenger, and Jimmy Ross, commentator and referee, close it with a stirring 7-point badminton match that is run off with high excitement.

In between, Buster Shaver, with his Lilliputian company of Olive, George and Richard, presents a miniature revue of the first order, and Romo Vincent, in the headline spot, scores tremendously with his rotund comedy and robust songs. Mr. Vincent is a one-man global war against the oppression of gloom.

The Fox Movietone News, with its report on the war around the world; Sam Jack Kaufman's "M-G-M Salute" overture, with Lynn Allison and Bobby Simpson accounting handsomely for the vocals of many songs made famous in M-G-M pictures, and Milt Slosser's organloguing are the auxiliaries of a feature that can lay legitimate claim to a place on any American's "must" list.

OPA Accuses 3 Big Packers Of Tie-In Sales

Chicago, July 6 (AP).—Criminal informations charging Swift & Co., Armour & Co., and Wilson & Co., three of the Nation's largest meat packers, with violation of OPA regulations were filed in Federal District Court yesterday by United States Attorney J. Albert Woll.

It was alleged the packers compelled retailers to purchase secondary meats in order to receive choice cuts.

George A. Eastwood, Armour president, said, "When the OPA issued its regulations against tie-in sales, all Armour salesmen were promptly instructed to conform. We have no doubt that they did so . . ."

John Holmes, president of Swift & Co., said, "It would have been impossible for us to have been more careful to avoid this kind of thing than we have been and I am sure that we can prove to any unprejudiced person that we have scrupulously obeyed the law."

YESTERDAY'S ANSWER.

Dewey, Vandenberg Confer on Foreign Policy

Albany, N. Y., July 5 (AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey started filling in the chinks in the Republican platform declaration on foreign policy in scheduled conferences tonight with Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan.

Vandenberg, chairman of the Senate's Republican conference and one o fthe authors of the party's Mackinac statement on foreign policy, flew to Albany to visit the presidential nominee for the first of a series of talks Dewey will have with his party's members of Congress.

Arriving for the conference Vandenberg predicted tonight the Republicans would obtain more than 300 electoral votes in the November election.

A total of 266 votes is necessary for election of a presidential ticket.

Vandenberg, who is chairman of the Senate's Republican conference and one of the authors of the party's Mackinac statement on foreign policy, said he thought he and the Republican presidential nominee were in "entire agreement" on foreign affairs.

"The situation in the Middle West, which I know something about, is excellent from a standpoint of the ticket," Vandenberg said. "Governor Dewey's acceptance speech was particularly effective in our area—everybody liked it."

Vandenberg said he had no plans for the campaign except that he hoped to make a radio speech from Detroit next month on the Mackinac foreign policy declaration, the platform's treatment of the same subject and Dewey's public statements along that line.

Dewey has subscribed fully to the Mackinac declaration for American participation in international collaboration to preserve peace but has voiced opposition to any world police force for that purpose. He told reporters at Chicago that the platform plank on foreign policy, calling for creation of "peace forces" to prevent war but opposing a "world state," represented his views.

Senator Warren R. Austin will be a luncheon guest Monday, along with Senator George Aiken and Representative Charles A. Plumley, all of Vermont. Austin, a believer in all-out international collaboration ot maintain peace, helped Vandenberg to frame the Mackinac declaration.

Dewey, who plans to confer on campaign issues and national problems wit has many Republican members of Congress and candidates as possible, will see a Massachusetts delegation later Monday.

Dr. Adams Of Geodetic Survey Retires

Dr. Oscar Sherman Adams, principal mathematician of the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey, has retired after 34 years of service in the bureau, it was announced yesterday.

Dr. Adams, one of the leading geodesists and cartographers in the country, was honor guest Friday at a special meeting given by his associates and at an informal luncheon at the Cosmos Club. Speakers were Admiral J. H. Hawley, assistant director of the Survey; Capt. C. L. Gardner, chief of the geodesy division, and H. G. Avers, chief mathematician.

Dr. Adams developed a method for adjusting the triangulation of half the United States as a single undertaking and then transforming the resulting precise geodetic values into simple terms which every land surveyor could understand and utilize to secure for his work more accurate results.

In cartography, Dr. Adams is the author of many publications, ranging from deep mathematical analyses of map projections to the practical applications of his analyses.

He was graduated from Kenyon College, Ohio, in 1896, and later received the degree of doctor of science there. He served in the Spanish-American War and was a lieutenant in the officers' reserve during World War I.

OPA Investigates Big Nudist Colony On Gas Violations

San Francisco, July 6 (AP).—At least 200 members of a nudist retreat in the Valley of the Moon were called on the OPA carpet today to explain how they reached the place on "A" ration gasoline, some from as far away as Oregon and southern California.

OPA Agents Douglas Forsyth and Richard Franchi, in a six-day investigation, walked in on the startled nudists yesterday as they sunbathed and played games in an idyllic setting 40 miles north of San Francisco.

The agents reported that as many as 250 nudists a week drove to the Sonoma County camp, called Sun-o-Ma. They ordered more than 200 of them, from 27 California towns, to explain possible violations of gasoline regulations.

Knight in Race For Alexandria Council Vacancy

Robert E. Knight, jr., 48, of 501 Upland pl., Alexandria, yesterday announced his candidacy for City Councilman at large to succeed Eugene Simpson, vice president of the council who resigned last month. Knight has never sought office before.

Others in the race are Frederick L. Flynn, Republican, and John A. Logan, Democrat.

Knight is a native Alexandrian. He said his major interests are improvement of the Alexandria public schools and advancement of the Alexandria Boys Club.

Public's Estimate on War End Takes Sharp Optimistic Turn

By George Gallup
Director American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., July 6.—The warning against home front optimism issued by Generals Marshall and Arnold and Admiral King would seem to have been well timed, for a survey just completed by the Institute shows that the American public's guesses about the length of the war have taken a sharply optimistic turn in recent weeks.

Whereas the average estimate at the end of March was that the fighting in Europe would continue well into 1945, today the public's estimate is that Germany will be beaten and the European war brought to an end within six months.

There is increasing confidence too of an early victory over Japan.

The average guess is that Hirohito and his minions will be out of the war by the end of 1945—a year and a half from now. Only about one person in ten thinks the Japanese war will still be going in 1946.

Attitudes toward the length of the war have been sounded at regular intervals by the Institute in surveys on the following question:

"How much longer do you think the war with Germany will last? How much longer do you think the war with Japan will last?"

The last test, in March, came at a time when American and British troops were making comparatively slow progress in Italy. Today's new poll reflects the fall of Rome, the success of the Normandy invasion, the steady advance of the Russians toward Minsk, and the Superfortress bombing raid of Japan.

Public's Guess on Length of War With Germany

	Today	Last March
In 1944	59%	33%
First half 1945	28	39
Second half 1945	3	7
In 1946 or later	6	14
Unwilling to guess	4	7

Attitudes toward the war against Japan are shown below.

War With Japan

	Today	Last March
In 1944	14%	6%
In 1945	49	33
In 1946	21	32
In 1947 or later	11	21
Unwilling to guess	5	8

The median average of estimates on the length of the Japanese war is one and one-half years, on the German war, six months.

Low Cost Clothing Goods Cut On New Cotton Export Quotas

By Christine Sadler

Cotton textile export quotas for the third quarter, announced yesterday by the War Production Board, reflect a victory for W. Y. Elliott, chief of the Office of Civilian Requirements, who declared second-quarter quotas marked for other countries cloths badly needed at home in low-cost clothing programs.

While the over-all yardage to be exported will be about the same, WPB said, reductions have been made in the amounts of combed poplin, shirtings, gingham, seersucker, outing flannel, bed tickings and other "strong fabrics" used in work clothing.

Export Quota Is 8.3 Per Cent

Approximately 8.3 per cent of the country's total output of textiles for the quarter will be set aside for export under the order. This is the percentage estimated as set aside for the first half of the year.

The second-quarter order was not announced until May 29, however, and mills had only one month in which the make the quarter's quota available. OCR was at that time struggling with textile problems of its own, and the impact of the order "hit it hard."

Forty per cent of the combed poplins were marked for export in the second quarter. Yesterday's order cut this to 5 per cent. Ginghams and seersuckers had quotas of 30 per cent in the second quarter, are now 20 and 25 per cent, respectively. Outing flannel is cut from 25 to 15 per cent and cotton and rayon suitings of 50 per cent cotton are reduced from 25 to 10 per cent.

Services Use 20% of Goods

This country is now producing cotton textiles at the rate of 10,200,000,000 yards annually. The Army and other military services take roughly 20 per cent of the total, but this is unevenly distributed among various fabrics. All chambray of good quality, for instance, is taken by the Navy. Nearly all duck and denims are taken by the services.

Some of the fabrics which will be exported in greater amounts than usual during the third quarter are combed and part combed sateens, voiles, certain twills and marquisettes.

Under the new order, sheetings can be delivered for export only to Canada.

Committee Named To Study State School Finances

Richmond, Va., July 6 (AP).—Appointment of C. Francis Cocke of Roanoke as chairman of a committee to study financing of education was announced today by the school study commission.

Cocke, who is president of the First National Exchange Bank of Roanoke, named as members of his committee C. T. O'Neill of Charlottesville; Omer Carmichael, superintendent of Lynchburg schools; Boyd Harshberger, professor of statistics, Virginia Tech, and J. J. Kelly of Norton, division superintendent of Wise County schools.

The committee, which has one of the most important phases of study being made by the commission, will hold its first meeting July 14 at Roanoke. The committee will undertake an appraisal of the distribution of State funds for schools and will seek improvements in the distribution between the poorer and wealthier counties. It will also study the advisability of a wider separation of fiscal affairs from the general administration of the public school system, and will give consideration to the present and future status of the literary fund.

The committee is the seventh of the 15 planned by the commission, and the Mayor's Committee on Race Relations, Chicago.

Washington's own Juvenile Bureau is training its seven-man staff under the direction of Lieut. William Murphy to act as liaison between the Police Department and community groups interested in developing precautionary programs in the control of juvenile crime.

Junior Police Regional Plan To Have Trial

By Adele Bernstein

Well on its way to becoming the most successful preventive measure of juvenile delinquency in Washington, the Junior Police Corps plan was reported yesterday to be under study by leading civic and church groups for early adoption throughout the Northeast area.

Following recent conferences with Officer Oliver A. Cowan, young Negro patrolman whose development of the plan has attracted Nation-wide interest, officials of Parent-Teacher Associations, the Boy Scouts, Catholic and Protestant churches, fraternal organizations and citizens associations in the area will meet next week to plan the first steps.

Representatives of these organizations in the Woodridge, Brookland, Langdon, Bunker Hill, Noyes and Gateway sections are participating.

Has a Membership of 3000

Within its present framework, the corps plan in less than two years has attracted a membership throughout Washington of an estimated 3000 boys and girls, from the ages of 6 through 18.

Originally concentrated in the No. 13 Precinct, where Cowan was attached before his assignment by Police Chief Major Edward J. Kelly to the new Metropolitan Police Juvenile Bureau, the corps' membership is now drawn from every part of the city.

With sanction of Major Kelly, Cowan is now attempting to decentralize the youth organization on a community basis, with each neighborhood which finds it suitable setting up local corps under the direction of citizens.

According to Mrs. M. Robey of the Woodridge Parent-Teacher Association, leader of the first effort to adapt Cowan's plan to the Northeast Washington region, the community is "tremendously enthusiastic" about the project. Children, particularly, she said yesterday, have expressed the opinion that it is "just the kind of program we want."

Parents' Auxiliaries

Another development in recent weeks, Cowan reported, has been an increasing attendance at corps meetings of members' parents, who plan in the near future to set up parallel "parents' auxiliaries."

Carver Hall, at 2d and Elm sts. nw., where weekly meetings have taken place, can no longer accommodate the growing attendance, he said, and arrangements with local churches throughout Washington are under way to make play and meeting space available, he said. In this connection Cowan expects shortly to meet with the Rev. Francis McPeek, executive secretary of the Federation of Churches.

Evidence of widespread interest in the plan has been shown in requests to Cowan for information from the Middle Atlantic Council of Social Workers in Baltimore; the Roanoke (Va.) YMCA, the Boston Boys Club; the sheriff of Wayne County (Detroit), Mich.; Clark University, Worcester, Mass.,

Stimson Confers With Pius, Visits Papal Secretary

Rome, July 6 (AP).—Secretary of War Stimson conferred with Pope Pius XII for half an hour yesterday, and later, accompanied by Myron Taylor, President Roosevelt's personal representative to the Vatican, visited Luigi Cardinal Maglione, Papal Secretary of State.

Private audience with the Pope, the topics of which were not disclosed, Stimson presented high generals and civilians of his entourage to his holiness.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN
Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Mr. Jones Protests

We welcome and applaud the statement which Jesse Jones has issued concerning the projected election fraud in Texas. In a signed editorial on page one of his Houston Chronicle, Mr. Jones forthrightly criticized the action of the Texas State Democratic Convention in instructing the presidential electors to refrain from voting for the party nominee unless the national convention meets certain conditions. "No political convention," his editorial declared, "has the authority to deny a qualified voter the right to vote for any candidate he wishes to support." This is elementary American doctrine. In espousing it publicly, Mr. Jones has rendered a service to his party and his country.

Recently we took occasion to reproach Mr. Jones for his failure to espouse this doctrine earlier. So great is his influence in Texas that his silence seemed to us to lend encouragement, if not assent, to a scheme which, as he himself has now put it, would, in effect, "change the rules of the game as we have always known them in Texas." His protest, we are confident, will go far toward averting this danger. In making it he fulfills an inescapable responsibility which devolves upon him because of his prestige, his public office and his position as the publisher of a great newspaper. The issue at stake is neither local nor political in the narrow sense. It concerns nothing less than the integrity of our electoral process.

China Today

Seven years ago today the Japanese set upon China in a campaign the end of which is not yet in sight. The anniversary comes at a moment when the fortunes of war are at their lowest ebb from China's standpoint. The enemy is within an ace of capturing the entire length of the Hankow-Canton line. With the Peking-Hankow line already in Japanese hands, this will mean a bifurcated China, and the Japanese will be left with a line of land communications clear through the Asiatic mainland from Korea to the Malay Peninsula. That must not be forgotten when we speak of the early possibility, arising out of the success of our two-dimensional sea power, of cutting Japan's sea communications.

In this time of travail the people of China still maintain the philosophical unity with which they met the Japanese invasion. Their young men and their young women are still in arms against the people they contemptuously refer to as the 'dwarf men." But those arms are pitifully meager. All they can do is to harass and to delay. This has been done to the discomfiture of many a Japanese enterprise. Far more significant than the clash of arms in the Chinese theater is the constant undermining of the Japanese position behind the lines. It is often true that towns in north China are held by day by the Japanese and by night by the Chinese guerillas. Sabotage is a constant hazard for the occupying power. Moreover, aside from the Chinese fighters, the Chinese people as a whole present a deadweight on the Japanese invader. Thus the warrior who is fighting the Chinese in China today is a pale reflection of the Spartan fellow who seven years ago went on the warpath to spread coprosperity.

One might go so far as to say that Japan in China has become more or less divorced from the Japan which our seapower is now engaging within the Empire's outer perimeter. There are those who think that these Japanese, like the Tartars before them, will eventually become absorbed. To be sure, there is a biological persistence about the Chinese which is ethnologically incomparable. However, the Japanese in China constitute a war machine—though the degree of its unity is difficult to tell—and the United Nations cannot rest content till that machine has been shattered. China knows that one of these days the United Nations will be able to clear the entire Asiatic mainland. The question is: How soon? Doubtless a plan has been under discussion in Chungking by Mr. Wallace. What troubles the Chinese, aside from the delay in coming to grips with the China problem, is the part that Russia will take in the housecleaning. Chiang Kai-shek is not enamored of Russian help, believing that the Russians are in league with his internal enemies, the Chinese Communists. An understanding between Chiang and the Communists is thus essential in the larger interest of United Nations understanding.

If Mr. Wallace is bringing back with him some evidence of a Chiang Kai-shek Communist rapprochement, he will be a welcome messenger. His pilgrimage should have assured the generalissimo of America's devotion to him personally, to the ideal of a freed China, and, beyond that, to a role for China as a growing stabilizer in the Far East. The opportunity is China's. Greatness is being thrust upon China by her sister powers in the United Nations. So outstanding a statesman as Chiang is must realize that in assuring China of this position his own country must be politically strengthened by the Chinese themselves. That can be done by seeking to associate in the new China elements in his own country like the Communists (who, by the way, are not so much Communists as antilandowners and anticentralists) of northwestern China. On the seventh anniversary of the struggle against China a political rebirth in Chungking would be the most fitting celebration.

Land For Farmers

No phase of the postwar reconversion problem carries weightier implications for the national economy than the disposal of surplus federally owned land. Since 1938 the Government has acquired title, or is now in the process of acquiring it, to something like 22 million acres of real estate. It is estimated that close to 10 million of these acres are suitable for agriculture and that the bulk of them, probably seven or eight million acres, will be available for disposal when the war is ended. They were acquired by the Government, either through direct purchase or by condemnation, for such uses as training centers, artillery proving grounds, bombing areas or other military needs. The manner in which the Government disposes of this agricultural land cannot fail to have important social and economic consequences.

We cannot afford to have this land hurriedly or indiscriminately dumped by the Government. There has been, and will be, plenty of pressure brought to have the director of Surplus Property Disposal, W. L. Clayton, do just this. It will be argued that the Government ought "to get out of private business" as speedily as possible. Land speculators and bargain hunting special interest groups will seek quick and prodigious profits through purchase of this land. And reports that its disposal is to be handled through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation give substance to fears that they will have their way.

The essence of a sound policy for the disposal of agricultural lands, in our judgment, is that they be sold to bona fide farmers. It is no less important, moreover, that they be sold to small independent farmers and to men, especially war veterans, who have experience in farming and want a chance to engage in it after the war. Such a policy would help to arrest the dangerous trend toward absentee and monopoly ownership in our rural economy. It would provide a channel for demobilization by giving men discharged from the armed services or from war industries a grubstake in the national economic future.

But they will need help to acquire such a grubstake. Not only must they be given a preferential opportunity to buy the Government's surplus real estate, but they must also have financial aid if they are to make a success of their undertaking. Under the Bankhead-Jones Act the necessary financial aid could be made available to them. It was enacted for precisely this purpose. Through the credit arrangements established by it, the Farm Security Administration could enable veterans or war workers with the know-how for farming to secure a suitable tract and to acquire the tools, seed, fertilizer and other equipment needed to operate it successfully. The FSA is the logical agency to handle the disposal of farm land.

The RFC, in contrast, is without organization or experience, and indeed without the understanding or will, to dispose of the land on such a basis. It knows only how to sell at auction to the highest bidder. And the highest bidder would almost certainly be the speculator or the large corporation farmer with abundant cash. Sale of the land in this manner would inevitably entail huge and wholly needless loss to the Government. For these would be forced sales at knock-down prices. More serious still, it would entail a highly destructive effect upon local realty values. The bottom would be knocked out of farm values in general with dangerously depressing consequences for the national economy as a whole.

We believe that the policy to be pursued in the disposal of surplus farm land will be nothing less than one of the vital determinants of our postwar social and economic security. These lands, if they are distributed wisely, can be a bulwark for private enterprise and individual initiative. They are, in a sense, a new American frontier. They must not be thrown away. They belong, by right, to the Americans who will live on them and use them and make them bear fruit.

Economic Charter

A call for a world economic charter just issued by a group of economists associated with the Committee of International Policy declares that "the moment is at hand to sweep away nationalistic political devices by which international trade in the recent past has been made an instrument of economic warfare." The solution of the problem of unemployment throughout the world, the report declares, lies in concerted action to provide equal trading opportunities for all peoples.

There is nothing novel in the principles suggested for incorporation in a proposed economic charter. One of the chief aims is to give effect to unconditional most favored nation treatment—the $64 phrase for a free field and no favor—for all trading countries. That, of course, has been the crusade to which Secretary Hull has devoted his official life. The importance of the declaration lies rather in the distinguished and representative character of the committee sponsoring the plan and the emphasis put upon immediate organization to secure tangible results. Heads of large banks and industrial corporations, the presidents of the United States Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers, together with many other outstanding individuals in the business and educational world, have set the seal of approval upon proposals that urge abandonment of what Dr. Wesley C. Mitchell, one of the committee advisers, has aptly described as "quasi-isolationism in world economics."

Dr. Mitchell, however, has in other writings expressed skepticism as to our willingness to abandon this kind of quasi-isolationism, even assuming our willingness to cooperate with other nations in political and military measures for maintaining the future peace of the world. Although there is still plenty of room for skepticism, it is encouraging to find men of influence in the business and financial world advocating a program of action designed to further economic cooperation without delay and thus to prevent the recrudescence of destructive economic warfare among nations. That is the road to war again.

Robot Bombs

Hitler's "secret weapon" can no longer be minimized. Mr. Churchill informed the House of Commons yesterday that in the past three weeks 2752 men, women and children were killed and 8000 sufficiently injured to be hospitalized. This is a heavy casualty list. The losses, indeed, have thus far been considerably greater than those suffered by our forces in the bloody Battle of Saipan, and more Britons have been killed by the flying bombs than were killed during the first 15 days of the Battle of Normandy. Nor is there any assurance that the menace of these bombs has been or is about to be mastered. On the contrary, there is still the possibility to be reckoned with that, having had sufficient time to test the weapon, the Germans will now begin to use heavier and more destructive bombs.

To be sure, the casualties that occurred in England during the peak period of the 1940-41 blitz were more severe. In the month of April, 1941, 7469 men, women and children were killed by the Luftwaffe raiders. There can be little doubt, however, that the flying bombs produce a greater wear and tear on nerves than resulted from the daylight or night raids on London. Those, at least, had a time limit. The flying bombs come over day and night, regardless of weather. Moreover, as Winston Churchill said, the weapon is "literally and essentially indiscriminate in its nature, purpose and effect." Thus there is kept alive in the minds of people living in a vast area the constant threat of destruction.

The surprising thing is that the Germans waited so long to employ this weapon. The question arises: Why did they wait until after the invasion had succeeded before hurling it at England? Certainly, before D-Day, the ports of England, crowded as they were with ships and men, were an ideal target for these destructive missiles. Was the failure to employ them at that time related to the fierce and continuous pounding of the Pas de Calais area by the Allied air forces? If that was the case, then it is obvious that what was done once can be done again. At any rate, destructive as these flying bombs are, they have not altered and cannot alter the military situation. They did not prevent our troops from capturing Cherbourg. They will not stop the further advance of Allied forces into France. The menace of these flying bombs is real, and not to be discounted. But it will be met, and Mr. Churchill left the House of Commons in no doubt as to that.

Dr. Padilla

Washington has been host to a great many distinguished statesmen since the war began, but none is more welcome than Dr. Exequiel Padilla, Foreign Minister of Mexico, who is on his second visit after a two-year interval. He comes to us as the representative of a great and friendly neighbor who, within a short time after Pearl Harbor, manifested her solidarity with the United States by breaking off diplomatic relations with the Axis. But he is just as welcome on personal grounds. Dr. Padilla is the living embodiment of the democratic tradition and the spirit of hemisphere solidarity. At the inter-American conference in Rio in 1942 Dr. Padilla fairly electrified the assembled statesmen with an eloquent and penetrating plea for unity of mind and heart and hand among the peoples and nations of the New World.

SUMMER FEN

Wet winds across the gently flowering fen
Stir to a rush of fern-tongues whispering,
Humming with silken sound awake again
After the winter hush, the muted spring.

Everywhere stirrings rustle and recall
Another summer hums and thrums once more,
Summer that presages another fall
And winter, stern and silent as before.

Rushes and reeds and marsh flowers, brimming full
Of summer-gossip, soon grow still again,
Wearied of whispers, welcoming a lull,
Never for long content, like restless men
Who gladly barter silence for a word
And that for silence—once it has been heard—

Detroit: Test Case

Detroit, Mich.

THE HEADLINES furnish some strange contrasts. "Individual quotas lag in war loan drive."

Our Saipan casualties total 9752."

You get the feeling the war effort here on the production front is sagging. "But I have an idea that a closer look will show that that is not so."

Over the Fourth of July weekend many of the General Motors plants were shut down. When the orders were issued by the company shutting down one plant after another, the United Auto Workers issued a sharply critical statement. The three-day shutdown, would result, the statement said, in the loss of six million man-hours of production—more than has been lost by strikes in any single month. These plants are making airplane parts, engines, every kind of war essential.

Only a few days before, General Marshall, Admiral King and General Arnold had issued a statement calling for no slackening of production in view of the long, tough road ahead. What about it, then? Why were those plants shut down?

The company issued a statement saying that work was suspended only in plants in which production was far ahead of schedule. It was a valid reason and, as a matter of fact, there may have been other good reasons for the holiday. Long hours and night shifts produce a cumulative fatigue that means diminishing production.

WHAT SEEMS to me significant about this episode is that there was apparently no cooperation between the company and the union—no understanding whatsoever on a fairly important matter.

It reveals a weakness that can work infinite harm in the future. From outside, you get the impression at times that labor and management are jockeying for position in what is so far a bloodless civil war.

How much it has hurt war production only our military leaders can say. The fact is that a vast volume of war material is flowing out of Detroit to every front in this global war. Cutbacks are beginning in many industries.

The real danger will come when the war, with its compelling urgency, its imperative necessity, ends. That will be the test for this key American city. In more ways than one, Detroit is a key city. Here are the racial tensions that flared up a year ago in savage violence. Here are thousands upon thousands of workers who must find peacetime jobs along with returning veterans.

Here is a vastly expanded industrial plant that must be converted to peacetime uses. Here, hard at work, are termites who would undermine our democracy. They know—these apostles of hate and despair—that Detroit is the key that will determine our future.

WHILE IT must necessarily be brief, I want to have a look at this peculiarly American place. I want to see the planes and tanks and guns being made and I want to talk with the people who make them. Decisions are being shaped here that may loom larger than anything done by either political party in Chicago.

Part of the bloodless civil war has been a battle of propaganda. Each side has tried to put the other in a hole. The controversy over the Fourth of July shutdown is a small example.

As a result, both sides have suffered in public esteem and especially in the opinion of the millions of men who are in uniform. The damage done in the latter direction has been serious. Whether it can be repaired is a question.

On one score, at least, it's easy to clear up wrong impressions. I have talked with Treasury officials in Washington and they say that, in this Fifth War Loan drive, individual quotas will be met for the first time.

Before the drive is over, individuals will buy in small denominations six billion dollars worth of bonds. The total quota of 16 billions will be exceeded, says the Treasury, by at least 3 billions.

In this one phase of the war effort here at home there's no serious sag.

Free Legal Aid

Your editorial, "Legal Aid," in the Sunday Post gives credit where credit is definitely due. However, we do feel that as the sponsors and operators of the draft aid center here in the District of Columbia we must advise you of the similar service being rendered by the Bar Association of the District of Columbia with the chairmanship of Mr. William R. Lichtenberg in the National Press Building. Since the opening of the draft aid center on February 2, 1944, it has referred approximately 300 of its client-selectees to Mr. Lichtenberg for legal advice by the members of his committee and to whom we are indeed most grateful. These members of the Bar Association of the District of Columbia are rendering an outstanding service to the oft-time bewildered selectees.

Some two years ago the American Bar Association requested its member associations to establish this service. Prince Georges County also has such a center. We are fortunate to have these groups in the metropolitan area who so eagerly accepted the suggestion.

Guerilla Fighters

Resistance In Northern Italy

Rumors from the Italo-Swiss border indicate that the Nazis are eliminating their Italian Fascist puppet governors completely. This would be a logical result of the failure of the neo-Fascists to contain the growing resistance of the pro-Allied patriots throughout northern Italy. There had already been local instances of taking over of direct responsibility for administration by the Germans.

It may be that German assumption of civil authority in northern Italy is motivated by the desire to prepare for an eventual retreat. The Nazis appear to be moving personnel and supplies out of Italy, and for the last five days no important shipments of materiel into Italy have been observed.

Cooperate With FFI

Units of the Italian forces of liberation are now fighting side by side with the Allied Fifth Army in its northwestern sector. The secret Italian Committee of Liberation, which controls the activities of some guerilla groups, has established contact with the French Forces of the Interior, and the two have started coordinated action across the Italo-French frontier. They not only exchange information and supplies, but send reinforcements to one another; and they have already succeeded in causing difficulties for Germany's military supply lines there.

In the civil service the breaking down of the Fascist structure is clearly discernible. Many towns, and even whole provinces, have begun to operate their administrations without regard for the Mussolini "government."

The Carabinieri, the national police, are also showing their defection from the Mussolini regime. Ordered to proceed against the partisans, they often fail to execute their orders. Many of them have already joined the guerillas.

One of the principal objectives of the Italian resistance movements today is to impede the retreat of the Germans along the roads leading north from Rome. In accordance with instructions given them by Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, Allied commander of Italy, the partisans are blocking roads, destroying traffic direction signs and blowing up troop trains. Successful attacks on retreating German units have been delivered recently in Tuscany and Umbria.

Not Enough Organization

The activities of the saboteurs and guerilla fighters in Italy have definite value for the military campaign because of the confusion and disorganization they are creating behind the German lines. But they would undoubtedly be much more effectual if the Italians were organized as completely as are the French Forces of the Interior today. Apparently the Italian Committee of Liberation does not have full control over all the resistance groups. Three or four geographically separated main groups, each with numerous subdivisions, now exist simultaneously.

All of these movements are fighting for Allied victory and against Mussolini, but they have not yet found an outstanding national leader who might crystallize them into a powerful striking force. The Bonomi government does not seem to arouse particular enthusiasm. It lacks the youth which characterizes the resistance leaders, and it seems to have a tendency to compromise, which is foreign to the desires of the guerillas.

Possible Leader

Some Italians in close touch with the northern resistance movements are waiting impatiently for news of the arrival of Col. Randolfo Pacciardi.

Pacciardi was allowed by the State Department to go to Italy without taking the commitments towards the Allies which were apparently consented to by Count Sforza. Pacciardi, with his hands free, may therefore be in a better position than Sforza to crystallize the northern resistance movement into a solidly integrated guerilla army. His comparative youth and his long record as an anti-Fascist leader, together with his achievements on the Loyalist side in the Spanish civil war, have given him a prestige which the members of the Bonomi cabinet lack.

But will he receive the necessary technical facilities to exploit to the full the possibilities of the organization which, politically, it seems he should be able to achieve? Pacciardi might be able to organize the means for bringing in arms and equipment, by smuggling them through the front or flying them over it, before penetrating the German lines himself. Or he might be able to establish headquarters at some point where contact between the outside world and Fascist Italy would not be too difficult to maintain. The French island of Corsica, for instance, might serve for this purpose.

Against Rent Certificates

I have followed with interest the discussion in your pages on rent certificates as a substitute for public housing. I was particularly interested in the letter of Mr. G. W. Hodgkins of June 11th because of his suggestion that this proposal raises questions of welfare policy on which public welfare officials might wish to express their views.

Since the rent certificate proposal has been put forward by the spokesmen of private housing interests as an alternative to subsidized public housing, debate has naturally centered around its alleged good or bad effects on the housing situation. There has been a tendency to assume that such a plan could be easily assimilated into a welfare program and that public welfare officials would be only too glad to take on this new job. Actually, the rent certificate plan runs counter to every principle of progressive welfare policy and administration. Its enactment would not only saddle public welfare departments with a job which they do not want but would jeopardize principles which they have long struggled to establish.

This association, representing the public welfare officials of the country, has studied the effect of the rent certificate plan on public welfare administration and has found that it runs counter to sound welfare policy in three important respects.

In the first place, it proposes to supplement income for persons who are otherwise considered self-sufficient, thus utilizing public assistance as a subsidy to the wage earner, his employer, and the landlord. To use public welfare as a wage subsidy places persons on the welfare rolls who, in our opinion, do not belong there. To use public welfare as a subsidy for any particular field of private business is even more dangerous in that it departs from the concept of public responsibility for individual security which underlies public welfare.

In the second place, the rent certificate proposal involves the creation of a new class of applicants whose need is judged by different standards from those generally applicable. Public welfare officials are striving to throw off the pigeonholing of need into "categories" and to approach the need of each family on an individual basis free from arbitrary limitations. The creation of a huge new "rent-only" category would be a serious set-back in this effort.

In the third place, the rent certificate proposal involves the granting of relief to this particular group "in kind," that is in such a form that it can only be used for the one purpose of rental payment. Public welfare administration has consistently moved away from the granting of assistance in kind and, in fact, it is specifically prohibited in the Social Security Act. It tended to reduce relief standards to a level which ran counter to any level of health and decency which welfare administrators could support. They are therefore opposed to any proposal which would extend relief in kind to special groups.

Soldier Voter

You may be interested in my experiences as a soldier voter overseas. It's a long story and a discouraging one for those who hope to vote as soldiers.

To begin with, during the long period the soldier voting bill was pending in Congress, there were many conflicting and controversial articles to be examined in the press and in magazines in an effort to find out where we stood. After a winter of this, when the amended bill finally became law, I was so confused by the multitude of talk that I didn't clearly understand what it meant. I grew discouraged and almost gave up.

Finally, about a month ago, in our magazine Yank I read a notice that the time had come to secure ballots for the primary elections in 11 States (including my State). To secure a ballot it would be necessary, the article said, to send in a War Department card of application. This seemed reliable and I decided to act. But where to get the card? Well, I asked Larry, who handles our relations with our orderly room, about it. (I had to keep this in mind, in order to ask him, and forgot it a couple of times.) Larry said he would ask for a card on his next visit to our orderly room, several miles away. This he did a day or so later, and I was told there were none to be had there, but that I could get a card from the "site election officer," located on the site where my barracks are.

But what was his name? That had to be separately found out, and how and when and where to reach him. A daily bulletin about that time (which I had to look up for the purpose) gave his name but not where to find him. Only after some questioning of friends did I learn where to go to get my form (402d orderly room). Remember, so far I'm only seeking a card of application for a ballot, for a primary election to be held in June in my State.

Having learned where to go (a week or 10 days slipped by doing the above), I forgot the errand a couple of times. Finally I remembered it, went up and got an application without much trouble about 4:30 o'clock one afternoon. There were no printed cards. A form had been mimeographed to serve the same purpose. Meanwhile another reminder came out in the daily bulletin.

With form in hand, on an evening shortly thereafter, I filled it out. But at the end of the application I discovered it required the signature of an officer. I work all day and our orderly room is a considerable distance away. So this presented another difficulty. Finally I decided to attach a note to our adjutant and ask him to sign it, put it in the envelope and send it on. And so this was done finally.

By this time, from my reading of the original notice in Yank, through the various steps, the postponement and delays, three to four weeks had gone by. Having finally mailed it, I'm very much in doubt whether the ballot can be returned to me in time for voting and remailing to my State to do any good.

My vote doesn't matter. But knowing G. I.'s, I'd guarantee not one out of 50 would go through as much as I have to vote in a primary.

Democratic Headache

By Mark Sullivan

Wallace's Chances

VICE PRESIDENT Henry A. Wallace, coming home from China, becomes—or continues to be—the center of seething about whether he is to be renominated on the ticket with President Roosevelt. The reportable facts are few. Actually, the only fact having the faintest weight is in the mind and mood of one man. If Mr. Roosevelt wants Mr. Wallace renominated, it will be done. If Mr. Roosevelt chooses another, or is willing to take another, Mr. Wallace will not be renominated.

The wish for Mr. Wallace's renomination comes wholly from radicals and other left-wingers. These want Mr. Wallace desperately. They know that a Vice President is elected for only one purpose, to succeed to the Presidency if the incumbent dies. And the very existence of the left-wingers as a political force depends on their haying a sympathetic President in office. If today President Roosevelt were to announce that he would not run for a fourth term, the power of the left-wingers would evaporate utterly. Similarly, if the coming Democratic National Convention should nominate an old-school Democrat for Vice President, and if he should succeed to the Presidency, again the power of the left-wingers would evaporate. Making sure that they have a sympathetic President in office is life and death to the left-wingers.

AS FOR the old-school Democrats, to say they do not want to renominate Mr. Wallace is to state the case mildly. If any of them do not openly oppose Mr. Wallace, it is only because they apprehend that they may be obliged to take him, by Mr. Roosevelt's direction. If Mr. Roosevelt were to indicate, by so much as the lifting of an eyebrow, that he does not care whether Mr. Wallace is renominated—that would end Mr. Wallace's chances. The left-wingers in the convention might still support him. But the left-wingers in the convention, while strong, will be hardly more than a third of the delegates. Their power in the convention depends, not so much on their numbers as on their closeness to Mr. Roosevelt. It is only when the purposes of the left-wingers coincide with those of Mr. Roosevelt that they have power.

The question is discussed in terms of political expediency. It is asked, by which course would Mr. Roosevelt get the most votes—by having Mr. Wallace on the ticket with him, or an old-school Democrat.

The common answer is that Mr. Wallace would not bring to the ticket any votes that Mr. Roosevelt will not already have on his own account. The supporters of Mr. Wallace are the radicals and left-wingers, and these Mr. Roosevelt already has. Further, it is urged that Mr. Wallace might even weaken the ticket.

PERSONS WILLING to vote for Mr. Roosevelt might shy away from the ticket if Mr. Wallace were his running mate. In the same spirit it is said, and undoubtedly is to some extent true, that if Mr. Roosevelt would take an old-school Democrat for his running mate, he might thereby disarm some of the party revolt in the South and elsewhere.

There is a public interest larger than political expediency. If Mr. Wallace were to become President, the relations between him and Congress would be unpromising. Some Democrats, in Congress and elsewhere, do not think of Mr. Wallace as a Democrat. They think of him as at present a kind of maverick radical, and as in the past a Republican, coming from a Republican family—his father was Secretary of Agriculture in the administrations of Harding and Coolidge. Some Democrats do not regard themselves as owing political loyalty to Mr. Wallace—as they do to Mr. Roosevelt who has been a lifelong Democrat. Some who like Mr. Wallace personally are utterly opposed to many of his views. Mr. Wallace in the Presidency would have little party loyalty from old-school Democrats in Congress. This weighs heavily with the Democratic leaders who earnestly oppose Md. Wallace's renomination.

Award For Merit

Although 1944 Pulitzer winners may not yet have had an opportunity to spend their prizes, I don't think it is too early to look forward to next year. I nominate for the 1945 awards all those reporters who have been "stuck" with the day-to-day coverage of the sedition trials. Let's hope none of these awards must be made posthumously.

The Federal Diary

Lithographers Call Pay Raises Inadequate

Skilled employes in Government lithographic shops were given pay raises this week but they're still dissatisfied. Most of them received only $100 and $200 annual raises which the employes contend they would have received anyway under the Ramspeck automatic promotion law. But the real sore spot with the employes is the fact that they had been promised the prevailing wages paid in the Navy Yard and the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, and they contend that the scale set up for employes in Army, Navy, Weather Bureau, Coast and Geodetic Survey, and the Interior Department is substantially lower. However, the employes do get full overtime pay now that their wages are fixed by boards, 30 per cent additional for Saturday work, but this will be lost when a day is taken off.

Two of the best speech writers in Government have resigned and they're now both working for the Democratic National Committee. They're Joe Berger, formerly of Justice and the Senate staff, and George Willison of Civil Aeronautics . . . Eugene R. (General) Wood won the runoff election to represent Office of Price Administration employes on the board of review. His alternates will be Sylvia Prager and R. C. Morell . . . GOP CRACK: "If the wife of 70-year-old Secretary Ickes has another baby, as reported, which would be his third in five years, it would be New Deal propaganda after Dewey called him a tired old man. Veterans' Administration will elect an employe representative on its board of review July 13 and 14. Candidates are Raymond J. Abbaticchio and Byron P. Richardson.

Do lawyers retain their civil service status in face of the McKellar rider that apparently was intended to take the jobs of the 9000 Federal attorneys out of civil service? That puzzling question is now before Attorney General Biddle and the commission for decision. The final decision must be made by the commission. It's generally believed that a ruling will be made that lawyers who have status will maintain it. Also, that veteran's preference must apply to legal jobs, and that the recently enacted Starnes-Scrugham Act covers legal jobs. But these will be paper decisions if they're made. No one will be responsible for enforcement as the commission is now. The McKellar rider definitely bars the commission from recruiting and examining lawyers and most agencies that have a large staff of lawyers will set up their own examining units.

This has all the earmarks of a raw deal for Army enlisted personnel who are on duty here. An order has been signed, it's reported, cutting off allowances for quarters and rations for 700-odd enlisted men and it's said that a supplemental order is in the works which will bring the number to 1200. However, the Army has no plan to apply a similar order to its many officers here. For quarters and rations, the enlised man gets about $3.05 a day, or around $90 a month. Apparently what the Army has in mind is to place the enlisted men in barracks, but it's said there isn't enough space here for them all. The barracks in the back of the White House have some vacancies.

War Department officials have taken their case for higher salaries for telephone operators to the White House. Civil Service turned down the appeal from the department to raise the operators to Grade 3. The department is losing many operators. . . . "Stamp Day" will be held tomorrow in Foreign Economic Administration. The goal is a dollars' worth of war stamps for every employe, which would put the agency oover its Fifth War Bond quota of 244,000. . . . Democratic bigwigs now believe that the President will approve half a dozen candidates for Vice President and leave the final choice up to the convention. Much depends, they say, on whether Vice President Wallace can get over a big speech on his return from China. Wallace would be on any preferred list of the President, but if it were up to the convention the odds would be heavily against him.

Dr. Oscar Sherman Davis, principl mathematician of the Coast and Geodetic Survey, has been retired after 34 years of Federal service. . . . Pauline G. Mahoney of Reconstruction Finance Corporation, would like your help in her project to give a laugh to the boys overseas. She collects cartoons from newspapers and magazines, puts them in book form, and ships them across. If you send her your magazines and newspapers she'll clip them and do all the work. . . . Ellis T. Longenecker of Los Angeles has succeeded H. C. Arnot in the highway transportation division at the Office of Defense Transportation. . . . George E. Dewey has been promoted to manpower counsel at Petroleum Administration. . . . And don't forget to write me a column while I vacation. The Post will pay $10 for those used. The deadline is July 26. New Pastor Installed

Hagerstown, Md., July 6.—The Rev. W. Victor Leatherman has been installed as new pastor of the First Brethren Church here. He served as pastor at Berlin, Pa., from 1931 to 1943, and was field representative of Ashland College (Ohio) during the last year.

State May Sue To Acquire Bay Project Tract

Baltimore, July 6 (AP).—E. Lee Lecompte, chairman of the committee to obtain a 5000-acre tract of bayside property in Calvert County as the site of an outdoor laboratory disclosed today that condemnation proceedings to obtain the land may be recommended at the next session of the Legislature.

If the property, selected by the board of natural resources, cannot be obtained by purchase from private owners, condemnation procedures will be necessary, Lecompte said.

Postwar Project

The project is designated No. 1 postwar project of the natural resources board and the laboratory would be a joint affair shared by the five departments comprising the board.

These include the State department of forests and parks, the State game and inland fish commission, the department of tidewater fisheries, the department of research and education, and the department of geology, mines and water resources.

The land for the laboratory is bounded on the west by the State highway from Prince Frederick to Solomons Island, on the east by the bay, the north by Little Cove Point and on the south by Drum Point.

Multifold Uses

The tract would be used for timber production, game refuges, public fishing areas, camp sites and as a general outdoor laboratory of natural history.

Estimated cost of the project is $100,000 for the land and $75,000 for structures. Lecompte disclosed that it would require two years for completion and would supply 2000 man-days of work. State Forester Joseph H. Kaylor and R. V. Truitt, director of the Department of Research and Education, are the other members of the committee.

Threats of Rent Boosts Draw Protests in Md.

Baltimore, July 6 (AP).—Lucien E. D. Gaudreau, OPA area rent director, said today that his office had received hundreds of calls and letters from renters protesting threats by landlords of raised rents under newly revised regulations.

Gaudreau said the regulations, which became legally effective July 1, actually will not be in working order for possibly another month. They provide that the OPA rent division may authorize raising rentals if a landlord shows undue hardship under present returns or increased cost of operations.

Most of the complaints, Gaudreau, continued, have come from residents of large apartment houses or apartment hotels. Many tenants reported that when their leases came up for renewal, the landlords, anticipating the new code, injected clauses to the effect that they planned to or desired to raise the rent.

The lessors were described as saying this would be done as soon as OPA authorization under the new regulations was obtained.

Although Gaudreau did not advise complainants as to whether they should sign the leases, which he described as legal, he did inform them that they need not sign them and that failure to do so would not mean they could be ejected.

Complainants were told they had to sign a lease only if it were identical with the old one.

Other complaints, Gaudreau reported, dealt with illegal rent increases and cutting off services guaranteed under terms of leases.

He reminded tenants that any rent increases must be approved separately and individually by the State office.

B. & A. Traffic Normal After Derailment

Baltimore, July 6 (AP).—Traffic on the Baltimore & Annapolis Railroad continued as usual today following the removal of a derailed freight car which yesterday necessitated transportation of B. & A. passengers part of the way by bus.

The line trainmaster reported that one freight car had apparently jumped the track just before noon yesterday at Marley Station and both tracks on the line were blocked for several hours. He said there was no serious damage.

Md. Firm Gets Pennant

Baltimore, July 6 (AP).—The Davison Chemical Co. of Curtis Bay flew the Army-Navy "E" pennant for excellence in war production today. The pennant was awarded yesterday by Col. Lewis A. Nickerson, officer in charge of the local Coast Guard yard.

Md. Flier Honored

Somewhere in New Guinea (Delayed), July 6 (AP).—Lieut. Gen. George C. Kenney, commander of Allied Far East Air Forces, has announced the award of the Air Medal to Sergt. Neal M. Grove, Route 2, Westernport, Md., for meritorious flying achievements in the southwest Pacific theater of war.

Bay Ferry Sets Record

Highway Traffic Soars 75% Over Holiday Weekend in Md.

Annapolis, Md., July 6 (AP).—Traffic on Maryland highways over the long Fourth of July weekend showed an increase of approximately 75 per cent over that in 1943, while use of the State-owned Chesapeake Bay ferry reached an all-time record.

From Saturday through Tuesday, Governor O'Conor reported, the bay ferry carried 20,165 passengers and vehicles, with the peak load more than 100 per cent over that carried during the same holiday period last year.

In Baltimore, George N. Lewis, jr., traffic director for the State Roads Commission, said traffic counts throughout the State indicated highway travel was 75 per cent higher than in 1943.

O'Conor said the ferry system transported 15,058 passengers, 4568 automobiles and 539 trucks during the holiday. Percentage increases over the same 1943 period, he said, were 85 per cent for passengers, 235 per cent for automobiles and 24 per cent for trucks.

Twenty-three ferry roundtrips were made last Saturday, when ferry traffic was the heaviest in his history.

"This extensive use . . . proves conclusivvely that it was wise for the State to purchase this transportation system," O'Conor declared in a statement. "Furthermore, the improved service now being given as a result of the relocation of the western terminal at Sandy Point and the good roads . . . combine to give further inducement to the traveling public to use the ferry facilities.

"Despite the fact that wartime conditions make it impossible to increase the number of ferries, we intend to improve still further the schedule and the entire service so that the best possible accommodations can be given at the lowest rates."

Lewis reported these comparable average daily traffic counts for 1944 and 1943 respectively:

Route No. 4, Southern Maryland, over Patuxent River; 4527 vehicles as compared with 1613 vehicles.

Route No. 40, Pulaski Highway at Edgemp; 8051 vehicles, as compared with 4701 vehicles.

York Road, at Texas: 3554 vehicles as compared with 2497.

Route No. 1, near Bel Air: 3718 vehicles as compared with 2612.

Suspect Held In Death of Elkton Boy

Harrisonburg, Va., July 6 (AP).—Sheriff Sam H. Callender of Rockingham County said today that a former inmate of the State colony for epileptics and the feebleminded is being held for investigation at the jail here in the death last night of 4-year-old Guy Putnam, of Elkton.

The child, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Putnam died at the Rockingham Memorial Hospital here last night.

The sheriff said that the lad, suffering a fractured skull and other injuries, had earlier been thought to have been the victim of a hit-and-run driver, but that later officers began working on the theory of a sex motive.

Sheriff Callender said that an inquest for the child probably will be held tomorrow. He said that the child was found unconscious at the base of a short flight of steps leading to the basement of the Elkton school Tuesday night after his parents had been looking for him for some three or four hours.

The officer said that the man now being held was arrested yesterday afternoon by State Trooper E. G. Kiser.

B. & O. to Suspend Four Md. Agencies

Baltimore, July 6 (AP).—Agencies at four Maryland points will be eliminated after July 17, attorneys for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad notified the Public Service Commission today.

Both the agencies and passenger service will be discontinued at Brentwood, Lime Kiln and Keedysville. At Frederick Junction the station will be placed on a non-agency basis.

Brentwood business will be transferred to Hyattsville, Lime Kiln business will be handled at Frederick and Keedysville business will go to Hagerstown.

The reason given by the company for the change was the manpower shortage.

Grandmother Enlists In Wacs at Hagerstown

Hagerstown, Md., July 6 (Spl.). Mrs. Bernice S. Wise, of Scotland, Pa., a grandmother, mother of five, three of whom are in the armed forces, has enlisted in the Wacs at the local recruiting station

All of her children are over 14 although she herself is in her early forties. She left a job as labor foreman at the Letterkenny Ordnance Dept., Chambersburg, Pa., to enlist because she said she feels that a woman with more home ties can fill her job at home.

Record Wheat Yield Reported in Md. Area

Hagerstown, Md., July 6.—What farmers say is the largest yield of wheat per acre in their memory, was reported this week. The average yield is from 33 to 38 bushels to the acre, with even poor land yielding as much as 23 bushels. One yield of 40 bushels to the acre was reported by a Benevola farmer.

Farmers and millers say the grain is No. 1 and that the straw is big and heavy. The first shipment from here to Virginia, 25,000 bushels, was made this week.

Youth Gravely Injured In Farm Binder Mishap

Frederick, Md., July 6 (Spl.).—Carlton W. Ridgeley, 19, was in a critical condition at the Frederick City Hospital today with a nearly amputated right foot as a result of an accident on the farm of his father, Harry Ridgeley, near New Market. Young Ridgeley, according to witnesses, was working on a binder when the brake released and the binder blade slashed his right leg above the ankle.

Rising Farm Prices Spur New Warning

Richmond, Va., July 6 (AP).—The monthly review of financial and business conditions says in its current report that farm land values in the Fifth Federal District are still rising, "despite widespread warning from governmental and banking sources that a danger point is approaching."

It stated that earning power of farm lands "for many years following the war and reconstruction periods cannot be expected to hold at present levels.

Urban real estate values are also rising in some areas in the district, the report said. "These are principally areas in which population has increased and appear in part to be a result of tenants, purchasing property to avoid dispossession in the event of sale of the property to some other person."

Md. Farm Leaders Concerned Over Boom

Baltimore, July 6 (AP).—Maryland prices for farmland have risen 36 per cent since Pearl Harbor, and the back-to-the-soil movement has assumed wartime boom proportions, State farm leaders disclosed today.

Concern over the boom was expressed by the farm leaders who said that of the approximately three million acres of farmland in the State, nearly two million acres need the contour cultivation and careful drainage that only experienced farmers can handle.

Samuel H. Devault, head of the department of agricultural economics and farm management at the University of Maryland, and Thomas Roy Brookes, master of the Maryland State Grange, warned prospective buyers that farming required experience, capital and hard work.

State ABC Eases Rum Ration Rules For Servicemen

Richmond, Va., July 6 (AP).—Under a ruling of the Virginia Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, effective this week, servicemen stationed in Virginia will be accorded the same privileges of purchasing ration-free liquor as were made to civilians, July 1.

All that is necessary, board officials said yesterday, is for servicemen based in the State to have a liquor ration book and the necessary identification credentials. This ruling also will apply to servicemen from outside the State home on furlough who can show by their furlough papers that they have been granted leave to some city or town in Virginia.

However, the board pointed out, the ruling will not affect the 72-hour liquor ration card for servicemen. Members of the armed forces with this type of card can only obtain a specific amount of whisky and are not privileged to purchase ration-free liquors.

The board said that the transient civilian also is restrained in the purchase of all alcoholic beverages except light wines.

Suspects' Alibi for Fire Belied by Thermometer

Baltimore, July 6 (AP).—The temperature was in the upper 80's, but the two men told police they lit a small stove fire in their room to take the chill off.

While they were getting comfortable, the vice squad perspired freely for an hour and 25 minutes, pounding down three doors with a 20-pound maul.

Lieut. Alexander Emerson, city squad chief who said the men were destroying eveidence, arrested them on bookmaking charges.

Buck to Head Revigorated Md. Air Board

Annapolis, Md., July 6 (AP).—Governor O'Conor today announced the appointment of Charles H. Buck of Baltimore as chairman of the State Aviation Commission to succeed Dr. Hugh H. Young who recently resigned.

In making the announcement the Governor indicated that redoubled efforts will be made to place Maryland in the forefront among the States of the Nation in aviation activities.

O'Conor said he had asked Buck to call an early meeting of the commission to consider extensive plans for the furtherance of aviation in the State.

Buck, one-time candidate for the Democratic nomination for mayor of Baltimore, has served as an associate member of the commission and the Governor said the new chairman was instrumental in directing the passage of aviation legislation through the 1943 Legislature and the special session of the General Assembly in March of this year.

The Governor also declared that "Maryland's possibilities in regard to national and international aviation are unlimited. We have the geographical, mechanical and productive facilities not to be found in other States," he said.

"It is our purpose to attract to our State and to keep within Maryland the development of aviation interests. In order to do that we will maintain a policy of lightened taxation and the avoidance of unnecessary regulations and restrictions. We feel that private enterprise can be expected to forge ahead if it is not thwarted by unnecessary governmental observances and hindrances," the Governor added.

Bootleg Raids Increase in Va.

Richmond, Va., July 6 (AP).—The first six months of 1944 showed an increase in the number of illicit distilleries raided by ABC and alcohol tax unit agents in Virginia compared with the same period last year, John H. Wickham, ATU agent in charge, said today.

There were 230 stills, with a capacity of 35,756 gallons, raided through June of this year. Agents also confiscated 4375 gallons of whisky, 95,765 gallons of mash, made 353 arrests and confiscated 78 automobiles.

Through June, 1943, there were 197 raids made on stills with a capacity of 33,456 gallons. Agents confiscated 2087 gallons of whisky, 119,132 gallons of mash, 28 automobiles and made 280 arrests.

ManWhoStoleTruckload Of Gasoline Sentenced

Baltimore, July 6 (AP).—Edward S. Ringley, 24, of Bristol, Va., was sentenced today to 18 months in jail for the theft in February of a truckload of 3630 gallons of gasoline valued at $620.

Ringley was sentenced by Judge J. Abner Sayler of Criminal Court after he pleaded guilty and, through his attorney, offered to aid in the prosecution of five other persons named as connected with the theft.

Dam Reflects Drought

Frederick, Md., July 6.—Water ceased running over the spillway of the Fishing Creek dam yesterday, Water Superintendent William Davis informed city officials today. The overflow stopped 23 days earlier than last year when Frederick City experienced one of the worst water shortages in history. The Fishing Creek dam impounds this city's main supply of water.

Mrs. Moore Made Citizen

Mrs. Phyllis May Moore of 4825 Willett Parkway, Chevy Chase, was admitted to United States citizenship yesterday by Judge Stedman Prescott in the Circuit Court at Rockville. She was a British subject.

Will Report Civilian Violations

Military Police to Help Patrol Highways of Tri-State Area

Baltimore, July 6 (AP).—Third Service Command officials announced today that military police would join Maryland, Pennsylvania and Virginia State police in patrolling highways of the three States and enforcing traffic and speed laws among military personnel.

Maj. Gen. Philip Hayes, commanding general of the Third Service Command, said agreement had been reached with the Governors and police heads of the three States for the joint police work.

The first military police motorcycle squadron is expected to take to the road about July 17, command officials reported.

"Our men have been empowered to stop any Army car, driven by soldiers or civilians; any civilian car driven by a serviceman or carrying servicemen as passengers, and buses or taxis transporting servicemen, if they are violating traffic or speed laws," General Hayes said.

Can't Arrest Civilians

The Army patrolmen cannot arrest civilians and the Army will not prosecute them, although military police will report flagrant violators to the State police or the OPA.

The Army itself will handle the punishment of military drivers.

The purpose of the program, General Hayes explained, was to "promote safe driving, thereby saving lives, prolonging the life of vehicles and tires and conserving gasoline."

The military police will protect servicemen against reckless and drunken drivers, attempt to reduce accidents involving military personnel and will be a closer check on AWOL's who seek rides in automobiles to escape detection by military police at rail and bus terminals, General Hayes said.

Special Training

The men selected for the new highway patrol are all experienced in traffic control or police work. They will be given special training at schools in the three States, the first of which will start July 10 at Maryland State Police headquarters in Pikesville.

Instruction will be given by State police officials. Capt. George H. Duncan, commanding officer of the Third Service Command headquarters traffic section, will serve as liaison between State and Army men.

General Hayes issued a warning to all military personnel that reports of violations of traffic rules, including the victory speed limit of 35 miles per hour, "will be made to this headquarters for appropriate action."

He said records would be kept on all offenders, and if necessary, would be turned over to Federal and State enforcement authorities for further action.

Reynolds Got $138,600 As Metal Firm Head

Philadelphia, July 6 (AP).—R. S. Reynolds, Richmond, Va., received $138,600 during the past fiscal year as director and president of Reynolds Metals Co., Richmond, and as director and chairman of the board of eight subsidiaries, the company's annual report to the Securities and Exchange Commission disclosed today.

The sum includes $50,000 in bonus or share in profits not yet paid pending Government approval.

New Game Board Member

Richmond, Va., July 6 (AP).—Dr. Warren Rains, of Warsaw, has been named to succeed Dr. J. Colbert Tyler, of Newport News, as a member of the State Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries. Other members were reappointed by Governor Darden.

Md. Soldier Dies in France

Hagerstown, Md., July 6.—Pvt. Jack B. Stine, 23, former member of Company B, Maryland National Guard, of this city, was killed in action in Normandy, his mother, Mrs. Blanche Stine, has been notified.

Yeager Rites Today; Famed As Hotel Head

Stroudsburg, Pa., July 6 (Spl.)—The funeral tomorrow of Herman V. Yeager, 59, manager of Pocono Manor, Pocono Mountain hotel, will mark the close of a notable career both in the field of music and hotel business.

His earlier career was in the field of music. After years of study, he became noted for composing the music for Ruth St. Denis, one of the greatest dance artists of her time, and as accompanist for the equally noted Nora Bayes.

However, he is best recalled in the hotel activities. He accompanied a group of hotel men who made a tour of hotels of Italy, France, England, and came to the Pocono Manor from Eaglesmere in 1932. His unexpected death on July 5 came as a shock. He built Harder Hall in Florida and during the winter of 1939-40 operated the Palm Beach Biltmore, Fla.

He was a director of the Pocono Township School Board, the General Hospital, the Children's Aid Society, Monroe County Mountain Resort Association, Monroe County Automobile Club, Monroe County Welfare Association, the Community Chest, and, currently president of the Stroudsburg Kiwanis Club.

His wife, the former Mrs. Thomas Roche, jr., of Haverford, Pa., survives.

Charles W. Beaver

Winchester, Va., July 6.—Funeral services were conducted this afternoon at his home here for Charles William Beaver, yeoman third class, who died Sunday night in the U. S. Naval Hospital at Bethesda, Md. He had been ill for the past year of leukemia. A graduate of Handley High School he was supervisor of the city park tennis courts and later became a bookkeeper at the Metropolitan Club in Washington.

"Uncle Joe" Walling

Frederick, Md., July 6.—Funeral services were held at Mount Olivet Cemetery here today for "Uncle Joe" Walling, veteran wagon train guide, Indian fighter and the oldest volunteer fireman in the country, who died in Baltimore last Friday night at the age of 91 years. He was a native of Frederick and a member of the United Fire Company here. Ritualistic services were conducted at the graveside by Fitzhugh Lee Camp, Spanish-American War Veterans of Baltimore.

Legion Post Elects

Winchester, Va., July 6.—The Robert Y. Conrad Post No. 21 and the Post Auxiliary, meeting yesterday, elected officers for the ensuing year. A. C. Halvosa was elected commander of the local post succeeding C. F. Schenck. Miss Lelia Rosenberger will head the auxiliary. New officers will be installed on August 1.

City Nears Bond Quota

Winchester, Va., July 6.—Wendell Barney, chairman of the local War Finance Committee, reported that local sales based on Federal Reserve Bank figures, were $1,085,000 through last Saturday. The committee is hopeful that the quota of $1,300,000 will be reached when the drive ends Saturday.

Ceiling Prices On Beer Start July 10 in Va.

Norfolk, Va., July 6 (AP).—Retails beer dealers who file their applications not later than today will receive group classification cards which will determine the prices they may legally charge before the new price ceilings take effect July 10, N. O. Green, price specialist of the Richmond district OPA office, said here today.

Dealers who fail to file applications for group classification cards for display in their establishments will automatically be placed in group 3-B with the lowest ceilings, he added.

Members of the local price panel to whom the new ceiling prices were explained at a meeting yesterday were quoted as believing retail beer costs will be rolled back to the level of October 15, 1941, in most cases and that there will be a substantial saving to consumers as compared with present prices.

Complaints have come from consumers who object to the 25-cent ceiling on 12-ounce bottles of premium beer in group 1-B, the highest price at which such beer may be sold anywhere in eastern Virginia. He said complaining consumers evidently overlooked the fact that a majority of the retailers will be in group 3-B and may charge only 16 cents a bottle for premium beer and 11 cents for other brands. The 11-cent ceiling, he added, will apply to most of the beer now being sold in 12-ounce bottles.

Complaints also have come from dealers and others in the beer business who contend that the 11-cent ceiling applying to most of the bottled beer now available is too low.

Lauritzen asked that the ceiling price regulations be given a fair trial and expressed the opinion that they will work better than many people now believe.

Leesburg Airport Work Is Started

Leesburg, Va., July 6 (Spl.)—Work was started this week on the construction of an airport and hangar to be located on the old George Field near Leesburg, according to James A. Jones, one of the owners of the new project, which is expected to receive official CAA approval this week.

The new hangar will be 80 by 80 feet and will have workshops as well. All types of flight training will be offered to individuals leading to a civilian pilot's license. This will be permissible here as Leesburg is just outside of the restricted flying area. About 90 days' training would be sufficient. Associated with Mr. Jones will be John A. Talbot, jr., and G. E. Carlson. The project will be known as the Washington Flying Services.

Firemen's 34-Year-Old Pet Parrot Is Buried

Winchester, Va., July 6 (Spl.)—Polly Rouss, a 34-year-old pet parrot of the Rouss Fire Company, is dead.

The pedigreed bird, which knew the sound of the fire siren and always squawked for the firemen to hurry, was buried with simple ceremonies back of the fire hall.

Polly, who never learned to say "Polly wants a cracker," could execute a skillful GI whistle at passing girls, firemen mournfully recalled.

Correction

Frederick, Md., July 6.—Pfc. Willard L. Money is safe and well, according to a message received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Money of Point of Rocks, Md. The message did not state his whereabouts. In a previous story, it was stated erroneously that Money was a prisoner of war.

Randle's Queen Captures Atlas Club Purse

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

These fellows Lloyd Marshall and Holman Williams who will square off in Griffith Stadium's prize ring on Tuesday evening are a rare kind of match for Washington. You see, they're both good fighters, in contrast to what has gone on here before in the match-making which usually has presented one fighter and one stooge.

POVICH

Gabe Menendez, who is staging the show for Promoter Joe Turner, wangled himself a match of national interest. Marshall is no less than the No. 1 light heavyweight of the world in the absence of Champion Gus Lesnevich, now in the Coast Guard. Williams is his opposite number among the middleweights, whose champion, Tony Zale, is in the Navy.

Despite their different weight classes, Marshall and Williams are not far apart in poundage. Marshall has been fighting at 165 pounds and Williams borders the 160-pound limit of the middleweight division. Nat Fleisher, editor of Ring Magazine, whose ratings are accepted as more gospel than any others, ranks them both at the top of their class, and the District Boxing Commission would like to call this one a bout for the light heavy "duration" title, but the N. B. A. won't hold still.

They've met before, Marshall and Williams. Their first fight was a victory for Williams, by a decision. They met again at Sacramento, Calif., last month and Marshall was a 2-to-1 underdog when he squared accounts by a late-round finish. A right hand to the chin dropped Williams for a five-count in the seventh and Marshall went on from there to win.

From a not quite unprejudiced source, namely John Rogers, who manages Marshall, we learn that he is the black Mickey Walker, who fights anyone from 160 pounds right up the scale to Joe Baski or any other heavyweight. Marshall has beaten Jake La Motta at 160 and is just off a winning streak of 10 straight. Washington fans are going to see a great light heavyweight next week."

Washington could stand a good match, incidentally. The skill hereabouts has been one-sided for a long time, with name fighters in with setups who have a local following. Williams and Marshall probably represent more aggregate skill than any Washington match in years. It ought to be very refreshing.

Holman Williams has been around a long time despite the fact he isn't yet 30. He has been fighting since 1931 and has had 181 professional bouts. He has been a loser only 14 times as a professional, and he has licked every man who ever beat him. He outspeeds 'em. He'll be the faster man in the ring Tuesday night, a faster puncher than Marshall and fancier with his feet.

Charley Rose is Williams' manager, but not completely. Joe Louis has a share of Williams. He's Louis' favorite fighter, incidentally. He came out of the same colored community in Detroit where Louis was fighting as an amateur and they grew up together. Louis was the first to become famous and he used his friendship with promoters to book Williams for main events back in the thirties.

In all of Joe Louis' training camps, Williams was a fixture as a sparring partner, except before the first fight with Max Schmeling. When Louis was training for the second Schmeling fight he sent out a hurry call for Williams, who came to Pompton Lakes for the specific purpose of aiming right hands at Louis' head. When Louis learned to avoid Williams' sharpshooting, he said he was ready for Schmeling.

It isn't supposed to be good boxoffice in Washington to watch two colored fighters, but Menendez is gambling that this one will click. "I couldn't turn a match like this one between Marshall and Williams down," he says. "They're the best now fighting in their two divisions and I want to see it myself. It it doesn't prove to be good business, at least I'll see a good fight."

Marshall will prabably be the favorite to beat Williams. He hits harder. Despite his 165 pounds, Marshall has had no trouble beating heavyweights and he wants to campaign as a heavyweight. They've been ducking matches with him for a year, Menendez says. "I don't think there's any body around who can lick him," he said, and then added, "unless it's Williams."

When Williams beat Marshall in their first bout, he gave the bigger man a boxing lesson. Marshall has come along since, "but he had to knock Williams down to beat him in Sacramento," says Menendez. "Except for that knockdown, Williams could have won that one, too."

7-Year-Old Victor by 3 Lengths

Charles Town, W. Va., July 6. Randle's Queen, long a popular mare in this section, carried the colors of Dr. G. T. Strother, of Brunswick, Md., to victory today in the Atlas Club Purse, featuring the Thursday program of the Charles Town Jockey Club. In winning her second race of the year in ten tries, the 7-year-old daughter of Espino lengths in advance of Joe Brooks' and Glorify stepped home three Flower Battle with Mrs. H. W. Boyle's Heloria third in the field of eight.

Randle's Queen acquired by Dr. Strother through the claiming box, was a favorite from the start of the wagering and returned a $4 mutuel. She was excellenty handled by Apprentice Jockey Bobby Edens and was clocked in 1.17 3-5 for the about six furlongs over a fast track and before an esitmated crowd of 3,000.

Battle For Lead

Flower Battle went to the front during the run to the first turn and was followed by Arch McDonald. Spanish Uhl was close up at this stage while Randle's Queen was being rated. Swinging for the stretch, Arch McDonald went wide, carrying Randle's Queen out but the old mare was too good and went on to be opening a gap at the end. Heloria saved ground to be third ahead of Arch McDonald.

The other purse race on the program went to the Palmetto Stbale's Post War Style. Jockey Bobby Edens again was in the winner's saddle and came on with the 3-year-old filly to win by a half length over G. G. Waugh's Milk Chocolate with G. Y. Booker's Appeal Agent third in a field of 8 going 4½ furlongs. The winner was clocked in :50 and paid a $9.

A longshot and a favorite figured in a $114.60 pay-off on the daily double. Charles Drayton's Frosty River surprised in the first race at $31.60 and Mrs. G. O. Russell's Our Orphan proved the best in the second at $3.80.

Between races—Apprentice B. Leggett suffered a leg injury when his stirup irons broke after he won the second race. He was forced to cancel his late mounts for the day. Eddie Brennan, racing secretary at Delaware Park, was a visitor today. L. S. Stewart of Washington purchased Sack, the one time Brandywine Stable performance, at private terms. A Moore, owner of Millcave, left for South Carolina after trying to sell the mare for $3000. Sprinters clash in tomorrow's event. Jockey Palumbo goes from here to New York to ride.

Nat-Brown Relief Game Tonight Expected To Draw 30,000; Candini Slated to Pitch

THEY PAY TO PLAY—Members of the Nats' ball club compare tickets they purchased for tonight's War Relief game between Washington and St. Louis. Nick Altrock (center) and Manager Ossie Bluege (extreme right) hold tickets while "Dutch" Leonard, Jake Powell and George Myatt (in that order) look on.

Champs' Ace Records His 11th of Year

New York, July 6 (AP).—With Hank Borowy hurling a four-hit shut-out, the New York Yankees gained an even split in their four-game series with Cleveland by defeating the Indians, 4-0, today.

It was Barowy's second shut-out of the season and his 11th victory. He has lost four. Up to the ninth inning, he had allowed but two infieldhits, but the Indians added two safeties in the last frame.

Mel Harder started for the Indians and yielded a pair of runs in the opening frame. Mike Milosevich began the Yankee half with a double, went to third on George Stirweiss' safe bunt and scored when Kent Keltner threw wild to first. Stirnweiss then completed his 19th steal in 21 attempts and scored on successive outs by Bud Metheny and Johnny Lindell:

Harder gave up the other two runs in the fifth and sixth, before retiring in favor of Joe Heving. It was Harder's fifth loss compared to six wins.

Voiselle Stops Cards; Giants Win, 10 to 1

St. Louis, July 6 (AP).—After dropping three in a row to the St. Louis Cardinals, the New York Giants did an about face and handed the National League champions their worst drubbing of the season, winning the final game of the four-game series, 10-1 today.

Bill Voiselle stopped the Red Birds with eight hits and lost his shutout in the sixth when a single by Ray Sanders, a double by Stan Musial and an outfield fly by Ken O'Dea scored the Cards' lone run. It was Voiselle's eleventh victory of the year.

Buddy Kerr and Nap Reyes, Cuban all-around man, subbing for the injured Phil Weintraub at first, each connected for three safeties. Kerr and Hugh Luby knocked in three runs apiece.

Conway's Single Gives Norfolk Nine 2-1 Edge

Norfolk, Va., July 6 (AP).—Jack Conway singled home Jeff Cross with the run that gave Norfolk Naval Training Station a ten-inning 2-1 victory over the Curtis Bay (Md.) Coast Guard at McClure field yesterday.

Conway's blow broke up a beautiful mound duel between Johnny Rigney, NTS ace, and Don Kerr, Curtis Bay's No. 1 righthander. Rigney allowed four hits and Kerr Six.

Nick Altrock's Comedy Capers Will Touch Off Colorful Program Ceremonies at 7:30 P. M.

Milo Candini, Washington's fast ball pitcher, and Rick Ferrell, veteran catcher who is having one of his best seasons, will comprise Washington's starting battery tonight when the St. Louis Browns are entertained in a War Relief baseball game at Griffith Stadium at approximately 9 o'clock.

The game is being sponsored jointly by the Touchdown Club and District of Columbia American Legion, and is a 100 per cent benefit all the way, with the free list being suspended.

It was announced last night that plenty of tickets are available, and are on sale at Griffith Stadium. Indications are that 30,000 persons, oneo f the largest crowds of the past two years, will be present, and one of the most distinguished audiences ever to attend a ball game will turn out.

"Commando" Kelly to Be Present

Prominent among the spectators who also wil laddress the fans will be Tech. Sergt. Charles (Commando) Kelly and Lieut. Ernest Childers, two of the outstanding American heroes of the present war. They will be seated in a box reserved by Thomas J. Kehoe, assistant director of Disabled American War Veterans' activities.

One hundred injured war heroes from Walter Reed Hospital and Forest Glen will be guests of the Touchdown Club. From New River, N. C., Colonel Harvey L. (Heinie) Miller and Capt. Evard L. Snell will bring a tiny scrap of bunting measuring six by eight inches which became the first American flag to fly over a conquered Japanese stronghold in this war. It was run to the top of a Japanese flagpole at Kukum on Gaudalcanal Island eight months to the day after the Jap attack at Pearl Harbor.

Gates Open at 6 P. M.

The gates are open tonight at 6 o'clock, anb batting practice will continue one hour. Infield practice is booked for 7 o'clock, and Nick Altrock steps in with his comedy capes at 7:30. At 8:45 o'clock the American Legion opens a 30-minute program that includes massing of colors, the music of the Marine Band, maneuvers of the drum and bugle corps and special drills and formations.

Special speed races at 50 yards will feature sprints involving catchers, pitchers and a combination race of infielders and outfielders. These wil be topped by a special event in which Washington's three best bets, Johnny Sullivan, Mickeq Guerra and George Myatt, will oppose three of the Browns' swiftest, probably Don Gutteridge, Ellis Clary and Mark Chrisman. Winners of al lthe races will receive $50 war bonds.

One of the finest features of the night is set for 8:25 o'clock when Washington's great pennant winning battery of 1925-25, Walter Johnson and Muddy Ruel, swing into action as Johnson pitches to Joe Kuhel, Ossie Bluege and Luke Sewell, survivors of the Nationals' last championship club of 1933.

Johnson Clouts Cycle as Bosox Top Tigers, 13-3

Boston, July 6 (AP).—The Boston Red Sox put on their most powerful offensive of the season today to defeat the Detroit Tigers, 13-3, behind Tex Hughson, whose record now is those same figures.

The sockers blasted four rival hurlers for 20 hits and every one of them connected safely at least once. Bob Johnson led the attack with a single, double, triple and homer and he was so footweary after completing his cycle in the seventh inning that he turned over his outfield berth to Tom McBride.

While driving in five of the Boston runs, Bobby Doerr collected a triple, double and a pair of singles.

Hughson, touched for 10 hits, kept them well scattered until the eighth, when Jimmy Outlau homered with one on.

Bob Muncrief Hurls Browns To 5-0 Victory

Philadelphia, July 6 (AP).—Bob Muncrief racked up his eighth pitching victory against four defeats for the season as he hurled the St. Louis Browns to a 5-0 shutout over the Philadelphia Athletics in the final game of their series here today.

Muncrief, who allowed only four hits, was given a head start by Vern Stephens' three-run homer in the first inning. Woody Wheaton, making his first start on the mound for the A's, after beginning the season as an outfielder, walked Mike Kreevich with one out, after George McQuinn singled. The stage then was set for Stephens, who teed off on a fast ball that was fielded by a soldier in the left field stands.

Askin Upsets Willis on Court

Sergt. Nathan Askin scored a major upset to highlight yesterday's play in the Middle Atlantic Tennis Tournament at the Edgemoor lub, when he defeated Rickey Willis, seeded No. 7, 6—2 and 6—1.

By virture of the victory, Askin will meet Davey Johnsen, seeded No. 2, today, 6 p. m. in a semi-final match.

Toronto Recalls Hurler

Toronto, July 6 (AP).—Orie Arntzen, veteran righthander, has been recalled by Toronto Maple Leafs from Albany of the Eastern League, and will join the International Leaguers today or tomorrow.

Marshall, Williams Drill Today

Lloyd Marshall and Holman Williams, duration champion's of the light-heavy and middleweight divisions, respectively, begin training today at Turner's Arena in preparation for their 10-round feature bout Tuesday night at Griffith Stadium. Marshall will go through his paces at 2:30 p. m., while Williams will work at 3 p. m. The public is invited.

Despite the fact that one of the largest crowds in recent years is expected for the battle of champions, Promoter Joe Turner announced that the ring will remain at home plate, giving four in the stands a better view.

Williams and Marshall have met twice before, each gaining a verdict. Wagering on the outcome is 6 to 5 and take your choice.

Although Marshall has been operating in the heavier divisions, he is a natural middleweight, and at 165 he will have no more than a five-pound pull in weight. Boasting a knockout punch in either hand, Marshall presents an effectie defensive that makes him one of the most feared fighters in any division. In Williams, however, the clouting Clevelander faces a tough battle. In 181 professional bouts, Williams has lost only 14 verdicts, and has reversad the min return matches.

Howard Stables Sign Jockey Stanley Jones

San Diego, Calif., July 6 (AP).—Hubert Stanley Jones, 18-year-old apprentice jockey who three weeks ago rode eight winners on one program at the Agua Caliente, Mex., race track to break all turf records, has resigned to ride for the C. S. Howard Stables. He left for New Cork today.

Jones won his last race August 15 astride a Howard horse, Civil Code. Since then he's ridden 51 winners, all at Agua Caliente.

War Jeep Scores in Top At Empire City

Jamaica Race Track, Nek York, July 6 (AP).—War Jeep, a fast stepping juvenile son of War Admiral, continued along his promising path here today when he defeated 11 other youngsters in the featured Runstar Purse, much to the delight of favorite followers in the large crowd.

Flying the Main Chance Farm silks of Elizabeth Arden, the chestnut colt wore down Joe W. Brown's Fleet King Dorsett in the last furlong, taking the $1890 first award by a length. Copabacana, from the Anget Stable, finished a half length out of the place. The victor, piloted by Al Snider, paid $4.90.

Piedmont Head Probes Free-for-All

Norfolk ,aV., July 6 (AP).—Ralph Daughton, president of the Piedmont League, said today that he planned to confer with representatives of the Norfolk and Portsmouth baseball clubs in reference to the conduct of players when these rivals meet. He received his report from Umpire Earl Darter today.

Daukhton said that he intended to instruct the club heads that he would not tolerate a reptition of what happened Tuesday night in Portsmouth, when bot clubs participated in a free-for-all following the spiking of a Norfolk player, Catcher Gene McCready, by Outfielder Lazare Bernal of Portsmouth.

The loop head said that in the future he would order suspensions and fines of any players guilty of such conduct.

He added that he was not dropping the matter, but would hold it open pending his talks.

Hagerstown Suffers Bass Shortage in Potomac

Hagerstown, Md., July 6.—Although the Potomac River is in excellent condition for bass fishing, few fish have been caught since the opening of the season on July 1. Only one large string of 15, which includes a 4-paunder, caught by three local fishermen, was reported. Other bass streams, tributaries of the Potomac, are clearing.

Colts Lose Player

Richmond, Va., July 6 (AP).—Gene Petty, 22-year-old rightfielder of the Richmond Piedmont League Colts, received notice today to report to the Marine oCrps for training on Friday, July 14. Petty passed his physical last April 24. He is married and has a 2-year-old child.

Cubs Wallop Braves, 11 to 6, In Swatfest

Chicago, July 6 (AP).—The Chicago Cubs and Boston Braves pounded out 29 hits for 42 bases in their battle for seventh place today, but the Chicagoans goth there first with the most for abig early lead that held up for an 11-to-6 victory. The triumph gave the Cubs the series, three games to one, and slapped the Braves into the cellar again in their stead.

The Cubs kayoed Al Javery, one of the National League's all-star hurlers, in the fourth inning and continued against Stan Klopp, Jim Hickey and Ira Hutchinson for 15 hits. Phil Cavarretta led the swatfest with a triple and two singles, while Don Johnson also made three hits, one a double.

Twilight Tear Cracks Record At Arlington

Chicago, July 6 (AP).—Twilight Tear, smashed the track record in galloping to her ninth straight victory in the $10,000 added Skokie Handicap at Arlington Park today.

Packing 121 pounds, Twilight Tear sprinted the 7 furlongs in 1:22 3-5, which was within three-fifths of a second of the world's record set by Clang at Arlington Park in 1935.

The Pacific Coast sprinter, Sirde, finished second, with Challenge Me third.

Pensive, Twilight Tear's stablemate, finished fifth in a field of seven.

Twilight Tear and Pensive, entry of the Calumet Farms, went to the post favorites, returning $2.60 and $2.20. There were no show mutuels.

Arlington Restricts Use of Water

Arlington, Fairfax Bureau of The Post.
Arlington Va. Tel. CH. 3239.

Effective immediately, the use of water for sprinkling lawns and gardens and washing cars and sidewalks is prohibited from 5:30 to 8:30 p. m. until further notice, it was announced yesterday by A. T. Lundberg, Arlington County water superintendent.

This restriction is necessary, Lundberg stated, in order to provide an adequate supply of water throughout the county for domestic use during the dinner hours. Steps are being taken to remedy the condition, he said. Compliance with the order will be enforced by county police.

The county board already has approved a program of water projects, costing $270,000 to relieve the shortage. This involves the installation of a 36-inch main from the Dale Carlia Filter Plant to the D. C. end of Chain Bridge; a 36-inch main from the Virginia end of the Chain Bridge to the top of Chain Bridge hill; a 24-inch connection to the Chain Bridge hill pumping station and an increase in the pumping capacity of the Chain Bridge hill station.

However, Lundsberg stated, the rst two items are major projects which will require considerable time, however, items three and four will be completed immediately and will provide considerable relief this summer.

Awards for Best Lawns

Increased pressure during peak hours and enlarged water mains are expected to end the water shortage in Fairlington, A. T. Lundberg, chief engineer of the Arlington County water repartment, told members of the Fairlington Civic Association at a meting Wednesday night.

Awards in the contest for the best maintenance of lawns on the south side of Fairlington went to Lieut. and Mrs. Ruel Walker, Capt. and Mrs. Oscar Federsen, Lieut. and Mrs. Glenn H .Casidy and Mr. and Mrs. John E. Sawyer, all residentsof 36th st., Fairlington. Each couple received $25.

Board Denies Radio Tower Application

The Fairfax County Board of Zoning Appeals, meeting in special session at the County Office Building, Fairfax, yesterday morning, denied the application of the Blue Network to construct and operate a 250-foot radio transmitting tower on two acres of land at Langley in Providence District. The appeal of F. D. Richardson, attorney for the broadcasting company, for a continuance of the case also was denied.

William Bradford, president of the McLean School and Civic League, presented the resolution opposing the application of the Blue Network adopted at a meeting of the organization Wednesday night, and approximately 50 residents of the Langley area were on hand to voice their disapproval of the construction of such a tower in a restricted residential area.

Educators to Confer At Madison College

Harrisonburg, Va., July 6 (AP). Basic problems facing education in Virginia today will be discussed at a one-day institute to be held at Madison College July 11.

S. P. Duke, president of the college, in announcing the session last night, said "this institute centers around the belief that never has education in our country faced a more serious crisis than it faces today. Miss Ethel Spillman, of Harrisonburg, president of the Virginia Education Association, will preside at the institute.

Mother of 7 Killed In Shotgun Accident

Mrs. Mary M. Butlery 50, of Route 2, Vienna, Va., mother of seven children, who was instantly killed Wednesday morning when a shotgun was accidently discharged while in the hands of her 64-year-old husband, Edward A. Butler, will be buried in Flint Hill Cemetery tomorrow afternoon. Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock at the Oakton Methodist Church.

Mrs. Butler is survived also by four stepchildren.

T. B. McCord, coroner for Fairfax County, issued a certificate of accidental death.

Quota in War Loan Campaign Raised by Montgomery County

Montgomery County has gone over the top in its goal of $2,750,000 in the Fifth War Loan Drive, Richard F. Green, chairman, announced last night.

Leading area, he said, was the northeastern district of Sandy Spring, Olney and Spencerville, which sold $624,993.75 in war bonds against a quota of $300,000. The northwestern district, Germantown, Damascus and Poolesville, oversubscribed with sales amounting to $143,356.25 against a quota of $100,000.

A total of $602,495 was subscribed by the central district, which takes in the Rockville-Gaithersburg section with a quota of $600,000. Two districts fell behind their quotas—the Bethesda-Chevy Chase and Cabin John, where sales were $275,257 against a quota of $565,000, and the Takoma Park-Silver Spring area, with sales amounting to $974,659.25 against a quota of $1,185,000.

Bonds purchased in other localities but allocated to Montgomery County are $170,500. Total figures of the drive are $2,791,261.25, according to Green.

The drive will end formally tomorrow, although Green pointed out series E, F, and G bonds, and tax savings notes, will continue to be sold. All sales recorded during July will count as part of the Fifth War Loan Drive.

Hospital Plan Backed

The building project of the proposed Silver Spring Hospital has been unanimously indorsed by the Montgomery County Medical Society, it was announced yesterday by Fred L. Lutes, president of the Silver Spring Hospital Association, Inc.

Dr. H. H. Howlett, Silver Spring physician, has been appointed to serve as temporary chairman of the hospital's medical advisory committee by the society.

With more than 4100 persons enrolled as members of the hospital association, Lutes said dues and additional gifts have brought $19,205.25 to the hospital's treasury. Expenditures have amounted to $113.15.

"The drive for members," Lutes said, "has been one of the most successful campaigns I have ever seen in this community."

Selection of a site for the hospital will be the next step in the program.

Pythians Going to Church

The Knights of Pythias of Montgomery County will attend the Rockville Baptist Church Sunday morning to hear the Rev. Herbert O. Cooper, pastor, speak on "Manpower."

The Baptist Training Union will present a program at 7 p. m. for all ages. Devotional exercises will be held on the church lawn at 7:45 p. m.

Sales Tax Commission to Hold Northern Va. Hearing July 11

At the request of Alexandria and Arlington business leaders who have united in opposition to the proposed Virginia sales and use tax, the special tax commission appointed by the Virginia General Assembly to study the measure will hold a hearing for northern Virginians in Alexandria Tuesday, July 11, at 10:30 a. m. at the USO-Drop-In Center, 115 North Washington st.

Representatives from Arlington and Alexandria attended hearings last month in Richmond and Roanoke when the request was made to call the session in the northern area. The State's investigation reopens the tax issue which nearby retailers had hoped was closed when State Senator Y. Melvin Hodges of South Hill, withdrew his proposal, Senate Bill No. 22, during the last session of the Legislature.

It was felt that opposition particularly among business interests near State lines, had decided the question. However, the General Assembly later appointed the commission to submit reports to Governor Darden, and members of both houses by October 1.

The City of Alexandria has united with the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce under Martin E. Greene, business manager, and will be represented at the coming hearing by City Attorney Joseph M. Pancoast. The brief of Arlington will be presented by Col. Christopher Garnett, jr., of 4503 Rock Spring rd., Arlington, who has his law offices in Washington.

Frederick L. Flynn, Alexandria lawyer, has been retained by the Alexandria Retail Merchants Association to present arguments against the tax. Walter M. Evans has been counsel for the Virginia Retail Merchants Association to protest the bill.

Dr. Tipton R. Snavely of the University of Virginia at Charlottesville is chairman of the commission Cassius M. Chichester of Richmond is secretary, and John B. Boatwright of Richmond is recording secretary. Senator Hodges, who introduced the bill, is vice chairman.

Other members are Senator J. C. Carpenter, jr., of Clifton Forge; Senator C. H. Morrissett, State tax commmissioner; Senator John Warren Cooke of Mathews, Senator Edmund T. DeJarnette of Ashland, and Senator Vernoy B. Tate of Wise County.

Region's Fighting 29th Division Is Highly Praised

Richmond, Va., July 6 (AP).—General Montgomery's praise of the Twenty-ninth Division, made up largely of Virginia, Maryland and District of Columbia National Guard troops, is contained in a communication from Maj. Gen. Charles H. Corlett, commanding the Nineteenth Army Corps, to Maj. Gen. C. H. Gerhardt, commanding the Twenty-ninth, a copy of which has been received here.

"The Twenty-ninth Infantry Division has again demonstrated the tremendous power of infantry troops when properly supported," General Corlett wrote. "I want to thank you and your men for your splendid achievement."

Included in the official commendation were quotations from General Montgomery, commander of the Allied ground forces in Normandy, concerning the perfomance of the men on "D-Day."

General Gerhardt added, "This communication is passed on to all members of the Twenty-ninth Division with a great deal of pride. The fine spirit of the division has been demonstrated by its achievements. In future operations, keep in mind the men who were killed and wounded to make our present accomplishments possible . . .Twenty-ninty let's go."

Alexandria Chamber to Hold Annual Outing at Fort Belvoir

Alexandria Bureau of The Post,
110 North St. Asaph St. TEmple 6538.

Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, Fort Belvoir commandant, has invited the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce to hold is annual outing at the post July 9. The yearly visit was omitted last summer by the Army officials due to the food rationing problem, according to Martin E. Greene, business manager of the chamber.

Because Army regulations require that the names of all persons attending must be reported by July 12, reservations must be made with the chamber before that time by members as well as guests, Greene pointed out.

With a large crowd expected, those attending have been asked to meet at the Chamber of Commerce building, 201 South Washington st., at 2 p. m. At 2:30 they will be conducted on a tour of the main post on the east side of U. S. Highway No. 1 and the Army Service Forces Training Center on the west side.

A regimental drill will be followed by a band concert in the amphitheater at 4:30. Engineer units are to stage a review and retreat at 5:30.

An open-air supper of Army mess food will be served at 6:05 and a baseball game will be played at 7, followed by a dance at 8:30.

Swimming classes conducted by the Alexandria Recreation Department opened yesterday at the municipal swimming pool. Instruction will be given for the rest of the season, without extra charge beyond the pool admission fee, on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Sundays.

The instructors are Douglas R. Smith, Arlington, manager of the pool, and Miss Katharine Aumon, a graduate of the national Red Cross aquatic school. On weekdays classes for children will be held at 11 a. m., an open class will be held at 12:30, and at 5:30 p. m., there will be a session especially for war workers. Sunday the class hours are 12:30 and 5:30 p. m.

The regular schedule of pool hours permits it to be closed to all but members of the swimming classes when they are in session, as the pool is open daily including Sunday from 2 to 5 p. m and 7 to 9 p. m. On Saturadys an additional period is provided from 10 a. m to noon.

Theft of Watch Brings Year in Jail, $100 Fine

Convictions were handed down in larceny and traffic violation cases yesterday in Alexandria Civil and Police Court, with Associate Judge Harry F. Kenney presiding in the absence of Judge James Reece Duncan.

Arlene Walker, 27, Negro, of 906 Queen st., was fined $100 and sentenced to a year in jail for grand larceny in the theft of a watch from Mrs. Stanley Silver of 817 Church st. on July 3.

A Fort Belvoir officer, Capt. William O. Etheredge, 30, was fined $5 for failure to stop for a police officer and $5 for making a left turn against traffic regulations on June 29. A reckless driving charge was dismissed.

For failure to possess a city operator's permit in compliance with the new taxicab ordinance, John Carson, 23, a cab driver of R. F. D. No. 5, Box 334, was fined $10.

Fairfax Appropriates $35,000 Additional for Two Schools

Arlington, Fairfax Bureau of The Post.
Arlington Va. Tel. CH. 3239.

A supplemental appropriation of $35,000 for two school projects in Fairfax County has been approved by the County Board of Supervisors.

The sum of $30,000 to supplement a fund of approximately $128,000 for a new school building at Oakton to replace the old elementary school building destroyed by fire last January, and $5000 for a new shop building at Mount Vernon High School were included in the appropriation.

For the Oakton School, the county school board will obtain $100,000 from the State literary fund, and $28,000 from insurance on the old building. The sum of $25,000 will be obtained from the literary fund for the Mount Vernon High School shop.

School board members indicated that the contract for the Oakton School will be let on a cost-plus basis. Recently, the board rejected all bids on the proposed building, as the lowest bid of $166,000 exceeded the estimated cost. Plans for the building, which will contain nine classrooms and an assembly room, are now being revised in order to lower the cost.

The supervisors also have approved an appropriation of $500 to the Virginia Cancer Foundation for the care of indigent cancer patients needing medical attention. The request for the appropriation was made by Miss Julia Gunn, chairman of the local committee in charge of the cancer fund campaign.

The board has approved the appointment of W. F. P. Reid of Groveton and L. S. Travis of Dranesville district, as members of the County Public Utilities Commission. The other member of the commission is Capt. John Bethune of Falls Church.

In connection with the campaign to round up stray dogs in the county, Capt. Carl R. McIntosh, chief of police, reported to the board that 78 dogs were picked up last month by the dog pound truck and confined in the pound. Only 6 were claimed by their owners, and the others were destroyed.

Bid Exceeds Grant

Due to the low bid, for the new Falls Church High School that of the C. E. Nuckels Co. of Richmond for $223,700, exceeding the Federal grant of $201,000, no definite action was taken by the aFirfax County School Board at the special session held yesterday.

The school board will meet again tomorrow following a meeting with the FWA officials today, when it is hoped the Government will agree to meet the difference in the appropriation and the low bid.

Red Cross to Meet Monday

The camp and hospital committee of the Fairfax County chapter, American Red Cross, will meet Monday at 12:30 p. m. in the Fireside Room of the Falls Church Presbyterian Church, with luncheon being served by the Franconia branch of the aFirfax County Canteen Corps.

Mrs. N. H. Sprigg has been appointed chairman of the youth group and Mrs. Lowell W. Lee, chairman of publicity for the committee.

Annual Pet Show

The first annual pet show of the Vienna Playgrounds will be held on Saturday, July 15, with prizes to be awarded.

These contests are open to everyone in the Vienna area, and all entries must be brought to the Vienna Playground before 3 p. m., the day of the show. Blanks may be secured at the playground which is open from 9:30 a. m. to 12 noon and 3 to 8:30 p. m. daily except Sunday. Walter J. Dowling is director, assisted by Mrs. Antoinette Eisenhard.

HOPE RIDINGS MILLER

If 'Gypsy' Told Fortunes Her Bond-Selling Record Would Soar Even Higher

DRAFTING "GYPSY"—Washington directors of the Fifth War Loan drive haven't missed many money-raising tricks, but I know at least one they haven't thought of yet . . . Over in the Mayflower lobby Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis has been putting in her share of selling hours at the bond booth and results indicate she's a super-saleswoman . . . But I'd be willing to wager bonds would go twice as fast if Mrs. Lewis, who is such a talented palm reader that her friends all call her "Gypsy," were drafted into action as a fortune teller . . . You know—a your-fortune-along-with-a-bond effect . . . Most Capitalites would a thousand times rather learn about their own future than to see Marlene Dietrich's glorious game again, or hear any other film star read a patriotic speech prepared by a picture studio's publicity department . . . Yes, sir, "Gypsy" Lewis could put them all in the shade . . . She is my nomination as the best palmist in America.

CAPITAL CAMEO: Two strangers meet on a Washington streetcar, and begin talking . . . One is a gray-domed, aristocratic looking American . . . The other, wearing a United States uniform, with eagles, is short, stocky and bronzed . . . "You are an American soldier, of Spanish origin?" asks the American . . . "I am Filipino," is the reply . . . "Oh, yes, I've just been reading a fascinating book about your country. It's called, "I Saw the Fall of the Philippines" . . . Wonderful book . . . Have you read it?" . . . The colonel smiles . . . "Yes, many times. You see, I wrote it," he adds. "I am Carlos Romulo."

ART OF LAUGHING: It's a thin volume of verse, entitled "I ove and Laugh," written by Minne Dee Dawson of the Federal Housing Administration . . . It's gay, spontaneous, and unlike many other books, it actually lives up to it's jacket blurb, "Here is a refresher course (in verse) in the timely art of living, loving and laughing—with an hilarious foreword by Arthur Godfrey." . . . It's author was one of the first employes of the FHA. Her husband is on the director's staff of C. B. S., New York, and their daughter, Rosellin, is a junior in high school.

The verse is light and lively. I wish I had space to quote a lot of it . . . But for purposes of this column, here are the choices:

IN SELF-DEFENSE

"An extrovert is always kind,
With both an open mouth and mind;
While introverts, though rated keen,
Are reticent because they're mean."

LET THIS BE A LESSON

Girls who try to force the issue
Waste away to bone and tissue.

Dames who find it hard to wait
Get themselves the well-known gate.

She who would her man coerce
Succeeds — in making matters worse.

So my advice is, Sister, slow—
Don't disturb the status quo!

ONE FOR THE BOOK: "I was crusin' along," said the cab driver, "mindin' my own business—one day back in '37 . . . Well, a guy flagged me. I stopped and he said, 'Take me to the Capitol, and step on it. This is a matter of life 'n' death . . . Well, I make a U-turn around one of them wooden car stops on the Avenoo, and I don't notice an ambulance is turning in the same direction . . . Well, my car sideswipes it . . . Don't hurt nothin' but the ambulance gets a busted glass and my fender is bent . . . Well, just in case there's a court summons later, I looks back in my cab, hopin' my fare will give me his name and be a witness . . . He's gone. Slipped the coop while I was talkin' to the ambulance driver.

"Well, last week I was driving down the Avenoo by the Postoffice Building and a man hails me . . . He jumps in breathless. 'Take me to the Capitol,' he orders. 'Step on it, but be careful. Last time I was in Washington I got a cab, going to the Capitol, and the cab collided with an ambulance' . . . 'Yeh, I know it did,' I says. 'Making a U-turn. I was the driver . . . '"

The cabby stopped for breath. "Anything can happen to us in Washington," he said . . . He has been driving for a quarter of a century. His proudest boast is that Tom Mix has ridden with him half a dozen times . . . "Why don't you write a book about your experiences?" the driver was asked . . . He laughed. "Me write a book? Why even if I wrote it myself I wouldn't read it. Most people do not have the time to read books anyway . . . So what's the use of writing one?"

Peter Fraser Spends Day With Officials

New Zealand's Prime Minister Peter Fraser, who is visiting here briefly en route to Wellington from London, passed yesterday in a series of conferences, conferring with officials on the role his country will play in forthcoming campaigns against the Japs.

Yesterday morning he visited Admiral Ernest J. King and later spent several hours at the State Department. James C. Dunn, adviser on political relations, entertained at the Metropolitan Club at luncheon in honor of Mr. Fraser and the new Minister, Carl August Berendsen.

Only social event on the Prime Minister's schedule here was the 6-to-8 p. m. party yesterday when the legation's First Secretary and Mrs. John Reed were hosts at their home. Guests included mmebers of the New Zealand colony.

The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay

The People You Always See

The cocktailers with vaguely familiar faces, but who change their hairdos and ensembles so rapidly and so radically that you are never sure whether you know them or not.

The women in the first little black dresses of summer en route through ornate hotel lobbies to luncheon engagements.

The woman flaunting the oversize campaign button sniffing about for a victim for an argument.

The woman who has definitely made up her mind that you are going to join the League for Establishing Public Makeup Booths on Street Corners.

The street photographer who, despite your best strategic maneuvering, triumphantly succeeds in handing you a coupon to complicate further your parcel carrying.

The woman who has in her handbag a pamphlet you ought to read.

The man who has written a book (and published it privately) setting forth how all world problems may be solved.

The man whose face is so familiar you can't decide whether he is an acquaintance to whom you should speak or just a familiar landmark who might consider you fresh if you nodded.

The boy to collect for the paper—when dinner is on the table, company in the parlor and no change in the pocketbook.

The prominent "names" to whom you are introduced and reintroduced at public functions.

The butcher, the grocer, the landlord, the laundryman (occasionally), the bus driver, the man at the bank window, the woman at the cashier's desk, the neighbor who runs in for something, the talkative woman at the chain store, the women and men with whom you chat or dine constantly chiefly because they are accessible.

All the persons whose lives touch yours superficially who come and go fade in and out, whose faces and words are forgotten, who give you nothing and to whom you give nothing, with whom you build no solid relationship of mind or spirit, and on whom you spend so much of your time and energy you have none left for hunting up the people you want to see.

The People You Never See

The hundreds you have promised to call up and make dates with for luncheon or tea; the old friends you have run on to accidentally and promised in an expansive moment to see more of; the babies for whom you bought gifts of rattles and dresses a couple of years ago and which you still have wrapped in tissue paper in your bureau drawers.

The "friend" who borrowed for over the weekend your cherished autographed-by-the-writer best seller, or one of your leather bound classics, or the latest tome on world peace you were planning on reading as soon as you could find time to concentrate.

The boy for whom you promised to save your old newspapers—with the result that they are gradually edging you out of house and home.

The man who promised without fail to come to cut the grass; the boy who promised to come to cut the grass; the neighbor who was going to come over to help cut the grass.

The friend who is ill, or elderly, or otherwise crowded off of life's main highway, and whom you are always intending to visit.

The charming woman who, believe it or not, has a husband who gets along with yours, and with whom you had intended to build a friendship—but who lives on the other side of town.

The persons with stimulating minds and sensitive spirits with whom you started what promised to be interesting friendships, only to have them snuffed out by the thousand and one immediate little claims that fill your days.

The understanding and tried friends, the thought of whom brings you a warm sense of ease and gives a lift to your spirit, whose very existence is a security in an unstable world, and who, though you do not see them this side of paradise, will always seem close at hand.

Capital Home Is Planned By Buscombes

Miss Nina Michline Maubourguet, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edouard de Maubourguet, became the bride of Lieut. Comdr. John Henry Buscombe, RNVR, son of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald T. Buscombe of Linden, Bodmin, England, yesterday at 4:30 p. m. St. Mary's Chapel at the Cathedral was the scene of the ceremony, with the Rev. W. Curtis Draper, jr., officiating.

Bride wore white satin with train and fingertip veil held with clusters of orange blossoms. Her father gave her in marriage. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and bouvardia. Mrs. John A. Roberts was matron of honor in aqua chiffon with headdress of ostrich feathers; she carried a yellow bouquet.

Miss Silvia Brull and Miss Mary Cochran were bridesmaids. They wore dresses like that of the matron of honor; they carried pink bouquets. Capt. William McBride, RN, was best man. Ivor Bryce and Maj. Edward Gage were ushers. A reception at the Shoreham followed.

After a brief honeymoon the couple will live in Washington, where he is serving with the British Joint Staff Mission.

Comdr. West Is Entertained

Center of interest at yesterday's garden party given by Mr. and Mrs. Royce Powell, was the honor guest, red-haired Lieut. Comdr. Harvey West, USNR, who has returned to this country after 3½ years in the South Pacific.

The 29-year-old officer is well known in Washington having visited on many occasions. Nephew of Mrs. Edward Pardee Johnston, the former Mrs. Dorothy Lee Ward, he is staying with her and Lieut. Col. Johnston.

Invited to the 6-to-8 party were more than 100 guests, most of them being young naval friends of the honor guest.

Mme. Rybar Leaves Today For Vacation

Mme. Rybar, wife of the Counsellor of the Yugoslav Embassy, who is the Yugoslav delegate to the Monetary Conference in Bretton Woods, N. H., will leave today to spend the weekend at Rehoboth Beach. On July 12 she will leave to join Dr. Rybar in Bretton Woods for a few days and will stop in New York for a visit before returning to Washington.

Mme. Weingartner, wife of Alphonse Weingartner, First Secretary of the Swiss Legation, will leave today for Canada to be away two months. Mr. Weingartner will join her later for a holiday.

Mrs. Truxtun Beale has gone to New York and is at the Sherry-Netherland.

Lieut. Wellington Wells, USNR, and Mrs. Wells are in New York for a brief stay at the Weylin.

Mrs. Churchill Candee is spending the summer at Coventry Hall, York Village, Me.

Mary Haworth's Mail

In Planning Postwar Marriage With Girl, Man Concealed Fact That He Had Wife and Children With Divorce Pending; Disclosure Shocks Her

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: This is the problem of a friend of mine. I'll call her Ann. A former members of the Wacs, Ann met Joe at the camp where both were stationed. They were attracted to each other by the similarity of their likes and dislikes; and after they had gone together for five months, Joe learned he was to be shipped out. He asked Ann to wait for him until after the war, and he gave her a ring. Their engagement was not founded so much upon love for each other, but as a means to bring about the things they both wanted from life.

Ann's parents are dead, she is 32 years of age, and she wants to marry and have a family. She is a nice girl, quiet and reserved, who doesn't smoke or drink. Well, Joe was sent overseas and Ann, after receiving an honorable discharge from the service, obtained a Government job. They corresponded regularly. Joe sent money to Ann which she was depositing in a joint bank account. One day Ann received a letter from Joe in which he stated his wife had filed suit for divorce asking custody of their four children. He had never told Ann he was married, nor had she ever dreamed of such a thing. Joe wrote Ann that he had been trying for several years to get a divorce, and was happy that it was finally going through. The divorce was granted and his wife was given the children.

Now, Joe wants Ann's forgiveness for not telling her about his wife. He said he was afraid to, for fear of losing Ann. He says he wants to start life over with her, and wants to keep on with their plans as though his past had never been. He has a profession in civilian life and could easily support his children if he married again. Ann, however, is finding it very hard to forgive Joe's deceitfulness. She has lost faith in him and cannot believe a marriage would be successful. Joe writes that he loves Ann dearly; but Ann's feeling for Joe is nothing more than affection. What do you advise Ann to do? She doesn't want to make things harder for Joe, when he is so far from home.

W. K. N.

Expedient Person Is Never Reliable

DEAR W. K. N.: Joe's false-front performance during the first phase of his courtship of Ann is pretty bad; and marks him as a fundamentally untrustworthy character in personal relationships,—even though he may be successful in business and an able fighting man. The most disturbing implication of Joe's failure to tell Ann about his wife and children until he felt the coast was clear to do so, is this:

It means that he draws no clear-cut distinction between right and wrong, in ordering his private behavior in that domain of experience where considerations of ethics and conscience,—and not of law and the police,—alone can keep a man's feet on the upward path. It means that he is a disciple of expediency; ready to practive whatever deception, evasion or cunning as may seem to him necessary to gain his selfish objectives by the quickest route, with least gambler's risk to himself. And since this is the meaning of his failure to come clean with Ann, when their friendship first developed, it is small wonder his wife divorced him.

Trust Essential To Good Marriage

IN VIEW of the fact that they have four children, whose custody she responsibly solicited, and which burden he promptly relinquished to her, it appears that Joe's former wife is a sturdy personality, who generously invested much love and fealty to him in their unhappy alliance, trading on the vain hope that, given enough time, he might eventually outgrow his shifty weakness of character and become an essentially reliable husband and father. And finally was driven to surrender that hope, in dear-bought wisdom. It appears she was much slower to see the light than Ann,—whose faith in him has been shot to pieces, and justifiably so, by the first evidence given of his capacity to blandly live a lie. Doubtless Mrs. Joe really loved him, once upon a time, whereas Ann (fortunately for her) never has; and thus is spared love's blindness in adapting herself to the dawning truth about him.

Obviously, the thing for Ann to do,—not loving Joe, unable to trust him and properly wanting to make a good marriage, if any,—is (1) to break the engagement made under false pretenses; and (2) to refund his contributions to their joint bank account. To make things as easy as possible on Joe, she might explain that she isn't quarreling about the fact that he was married before and neglected to tell her so until his divorce came up, even though she did feel shocked and hurt at first. She may say the real reason she is calling things off is because she knows now she doesn't love him enough to be his wife, and never will; and that her best feeling for him is friendly affection, which isn't enough of a basis on which to start marriage, at least not for her.

Padillas Face Full Week Of Social Engagements

Mexico's Minister of Foreign Affairs, Ezequiel Padilla, and Senora de Padilla, who arrived in Washington yesterday on an official visit, face a full week of entertainment arranged in their honor.

Stopping at Blair-Lee House, the visitors are accompanied by Primo Vila Michel, member of the Mexicon-American Economic Commission, and Senora de Villa Michel, Prtocol Aide Javier Baz Manero and his mother, Senora Dolores Manero de Baz.

First date on Foreign Minister Padilla's calendar yesterday was a visit to Secretary of State Cordell Hull at the State Department. Then the governing board of the Pan American Union called a special-session followed by a luncheon at the Pan American Union with Secretary Hull, chairman of the board, acting as host. In the afternoon Senor Villa Michel, paid a visit to Villa Michel, paid a visit to Lee Leo Pasvolsky at the State Department.

Today there will be a visit to Mount Vernon where the Foreign Minister will place a wreath on Washington's tomb; a stop at Arlington Cemetery where he will place a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier and at 1 p. m. Senor Padilla will be entertained at luncheon at the Supreme Court Building with Archibald MacLeash, Librarian of Congress, as host. This event will follow a tour of the Congressional Library. There will be a press conference at 4 p. m.

Will Visit Capitol

Senator Tom Connally and Representative Sol Bloom will welcome Senor Padilla at the Capitol at 11:30 a. m. tomorrow and in the evening Secretary of State and Mrs. Cordell Hull will entertain at dinner for the distinguished visitors at the Carlton Hotel.

El Retiro, the Inter-American Defense Board's country club will be the scene of a picnic Sunday afternoon to be given by the Mexican Ambassador and Senora de Castillo Najera. Monday evening Nelson Rockefeller, Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs, will be host at dinner for the Foreign Secretary and Senora de Padilla.

Tuesday morning Senor Padilla will meet with the Inter-American Defense Board at a special session at the Federal Reserve Building. William L. Batt will give a stag luncheon that day at the Mayflower, and from 5 to 7 p. m. the same day the Mexican Ambasador and Senora de Castillo Najera will entertain at a large reception for their countrymen at the embassy.

From the embassy the Mexican Cabinet officer and his wife will go to the home of the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Adolf Berle, jr., who will entertain at dinner in their honor. Senor and Senora de Padilla will leave Washington Wednesday.

Teen-Age Girls Can Take Off Extra Pounds

By Ida Jean Kain

You teen age girls have been after me to help you get a super dooper figure and I will. But you'll have to do it my way! Most of you prefer to skip good, wholesome food and fill up on sweets. If you want a figure, you'll have to shove in reverse. Skip the sweets and fill up on good, wholesome food!

Some of you teen age chubbies are as much as 20 pounds overweight and you should change your food habits. This doesn't mean going on a diet. You're going to eat to get slim and keep healthy. First, breakfast—you'd skip it if your mother didn't keep an eye on you. For the first meal of the day, you should have a fruit, an orange or half grapefruit, or some tomato juice; and a whole grain cereal, ready-to-eat or hot, with milk and just a sprinkling of sugar. The less sugar is the tough part. And have a whole glass of milk for your beverage. You can have all that breakfast for about 400 calories.

400 Calories for Lunch

For luncheon, have whatever your mother serves—vegetables or soup or a sandwich, but no butter on the sandwich and very little mayonnaise. Also, have fruit and a glass of milk. But no pie or cake. You can have around 400 calories for lunch.

Dinner can be the regular family meal but no seconds on anything except the green vegetable. Trim off all the fat from the meat and do not take the gravy. If there are hot biscuits, have one, not four, and have fruit or a simple dessert, and your third glass of milk. Your mother will not object to your skipping the dessert and she will like your eating so many of the foods that are good for you. You "diet" by eating nothing between meals.

U. S. Gasoline Stocks Show Drop in Week

New York, July 6 (AP).—Gasoline supplies and heavy fuel oil stores decreased in the week ended July 1 while light fuel oil stocks increased, the American Petroleum Institute reported today.

Gasoline stores declined 2,441,000 barrels to 83,559,000, compared with 86 million barrels a week earlier and 77,185,000 last year.

Light fuel oil supplies mere up 1,032,000 barrels to 35,360,000 while heavy fuel oil stocks decreased 522,000 to 52,235,000. Production of the former was estimated at 4,496,000, compared with 4,337,000 a week ago and 3,556,000 last year. Output of the latter was estimated at 8,872,000 barrels against 8,961,000 last week and 7,781,000 a year ago.

The industry operated at 94.5 per cent of capacity, indicating a crude run to stills of 4,638,000 barrels daily—unchanged from a week earlier. A year ago the total was 3,892,000 barrels.

Daily average domestic gross crude oil production increased 3550 barrels and totaled 4,586,750, against 4,007,800 a year ago.

Estimated United States gasoline production amounted to 14,052,000 barrels, against 14,066,000 a week earlier.

Flow of Money Rises Another $177,000,000

Money in circulation increased 177 million dollars in the week ended July 5, the Federal Reserve Bank reported yesterday.

This brought the total in circulation to $22,598,000,000, an increase of $4,991,000,000 over the corresponding date last year.

The weekly condition statement of the Federal Reserve Bank said:

"During the week ended July 5 member-bank reserve balances decreased 94 million dollars. Reductions in member-bank reserves arose from decreases of 338 million dollars in reserve bank credit and 60 million dollars in gold stock and an increase of 177 million dollars in money in circulation offset in part by decreases of 42 million dollars in Treasury deposits with Federal Reserve banks, 122 million dollars in nonmember deposits and other Federal Reserve accounts, and 18 million dollars in Treasury cash. Excess reserves of member banks on July 5 were estimated to be approximately $1,500,000,000.

"There was a decrease of 343 million dollars in holdings of United States Treasury bills."

Business Briefs Of D. C. Interest

Metropolis Reelects Heads

Harry W. Wilson was reelected president of the Metropolis Building Association, Washington, and all other officers and directors were reelected at the annual meeting last night. Rudolph W. Santelmann, secretary, reported that total resources now are $7,945,980, of which more than $700,000 is in Government securities.

Owens Heads Agency Here

J. Mitchell Owens has been appointed general agent at Washington of the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co. Mr. Owens, a native of the District of Columbia, has represented the company in this territory through the E. J. Clark State Agency for the past 18 years. E. J. Clark retired on July 1.

Bradley Named Counsel

Directors of the Washington Loan & Trust Co. have elected Frederick M. Bradley as general counsel, it was announced yesterday by President Harry G. Meem. Directors also declared the usual quarterly dividend of 2 per cent on capital stock, payable August 1 to stockholders of record July 2.

A. & P. Chairman Honored.

Fifty roses, one for each year of service, were presented to C. C. Adams, chairman of the boards of the Atlantic and Southern divisions of the A. & P. Food Stores, at a luncheon given in his honor yesterday in Philadelphia. Mr. Adams, whose jurisdiction covers the Washington area, supervised the opening of scores of stores throughout the territory.

Contract Problems Weighed

Washington cost accountants, returning from the conference held in Chicago, are impressed by the apparent cooperation between representatives of both the Government and industry in finding solutions to the problems arising out of termination of war contracts.

J. J. C. MacDonough, president of the Washington chapter, said all sides of the contract termination problems were presented at the parley, which was sponsored by the National Association of Cost Accountants and attended by more than 2000 members. The public accountants' side of the problem was explored, too, according to Mr. MacDonough.
